Senate resolution would reverse milk record opinion

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Senate approved, with only one dissenting vote, today a resolution that tells the attorney general to reverse his opinion saying Department of Agriculture milk records do not have to be made public under the state's new open meetings law.

The resolution, introduced by Sen. Paul Bradshaw, R-Springfield, requires concurrence by the House.

It asks Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth to reconsider the opinion and if he doesn't, the legislature would consider the opinion a "nullity."

Only Sen. Ralph Uthlaunt, R-New

Florence, voted against the resolution in the 30-1 vote.

Bradshaw, who asked for the opinion, said the people had a right to know milk price markup information sent to the Agriculture Department.

Agriculture Commissioner James Boillot refused to release the information, saying department regulations prevented it and saying it should be kept confidential to ensure competition.

The House Agriculture Committee has begun an investigation of the milk pricing practices in the Springfield area, where milk is highest in the state in retail stores, despite the fact that it is one of the nation's biggest milk producing areas.

The opinion, Bradshaw said, "would make the sunshine law a nullity."

Danforth said the records are from private industry and thus are not covered by the open meetings and records law, passed last session. He suggested the news media bring a lawsuit.

The resolution says:

"Be it resolved that the intent of the 77th General Assembly that no rules, regulations or ordinances of any governmental body shall supersede the provisions of said law, and all records, meetings or votes of any public body shall be open to the public unless specifically exempted by said law; and that the information required by rules 2.06 and 2.07 of the regulations of the Department of Agriculture were not exempted and were not intended to be so exempted."

The opinion was obtained for Springfield Newspapers, Inc., which was denied the information from Boillot's office.

A measure to allow the Public Service Commission to regulate service areas of Rural Electrical Cooperatives gained first-round approval in the Missouri House Tuesday.

The bill is an attempt to prevent duplication of service by rural cooperatives and private electrical firms in suburbs and fringe areas of cities.

In some areas cities have annexed suburbs in which co-ops were serving customers, resulting in duplication of transmission lines.

A move to cut off debate on the measure was successful after an amendment to provide complete PSC control over coops was ruled out of order.

The House delayed action on a measure to provide an exemption from sales tax for materials used in repair and manufacture of school buses after it became the target of a number of amendments.

A substitute bill was introduced to provide an exemption for prescription drugs and private educational institutions.

39 support President

Senators polled on resignation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A poll taken after conservative Sen. James L. Buckley called for President Nixon's resignation shows that 39 Senators support Nixon's stand against quitting while 17 now favor his resignation.

Nixon Tuesday night reaffirmed his determination to stay in office, despite the surprise declaration by Buckley, one of Nixon's allies in the Senate.

In The Associated Press poll, taken hours before the President vowed again that he will not resign, 33 senators declined to take a position and 11 others could not be contacted.

Buckley, a New York Republican who was elected as a Conservative party candidate, and who strongly supports Nixon's policies, said Tuesday that Nixon's resignation would be the only way "out of the Watergate swamp."

He said Nixon's resignation would at once serve "the greater interests of the nation, the institution of the presidency and the stated goals for which he so successfully campaigned."

Buckley said that Watergate has created an unparalleled national crisis that impeachment can never resolve. "If the President withdrew this crisis would be resolved," Buckley said.

Under the Constitution, removal of the president from office requires a majority vote for impeachment in the House, followed by trial in the Senate and a two-thirds vote — or 67 senators — for conviction.

At the President's news conference in Houston, the first question brought up Buckley's statements.

Nixon replied that, while the senator had suggested resignation would be an act of courage, "it also takes courage to stand and fight for what you think is right, and that is what I intend to do."

Nixon also argued against the senator's claim that it would be an act of statesmanship, declaring, "It would be bad statesmanship, and it would mean that our system of government would be changed for all presidents and all generations in the future."

After Nixon's appearance, Buckley said he "would have been stunned" if the President had heeded his call for resignation so soon after it was made. "I did not expect that anything I said today would have an immediate effect anywhere."

Buckley said he had received some support and some opposition in private talks with fellow GOP conservatives.

However, three of them, Sens. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Jesse Helms of North Carolina and Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska, publicly opposed Buckley's resignation call.

Goldwater, considered by many to be the bellwether of Nixon's Senate support, said that "too many questions arise when it comes to asking for the resignation of President Nixon," including the danger of setting a precedent.

One conservative Republican senator, who refused to be identified, said Buckley's statement came at a time when "a lot of people are at a rather delicate decision stage. This is sort of bringing out in the open some of the things that have been talked about," he said. "You don't know where it leads from here."

Of the 17 senators urging resignation in The AP poll, all but two, Buckley and Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., are Democrats.

At his news conference, Nixon also:

—Told Americans that there would be no gasoline rationing and that gasoline sales would be allowed seven days a week. But he said that, as a result of the end of the Arab oil embargo, prices for petroleum products will go up.

—Directed harsher-than-usual jibes at Congress for its futile efforts since last November to pass energy legislation that meets his requirements.

—Seemed somewhat more moderate in his approach to Western Europe than in his appearance Friday in Chicago. Nixon said he will continue to oppose a cutback in American troop levels there — a threat he seemed to use as a club in Chicago.

Fire guts home

A Sedalia fireman, wearing a portable oxygen unit, makes his way with a hose through the smoke-filled interior of the Elda Dotson residence early Wednesday morning. The home was gutted. Damage was estimated at $5,000. Mrs. Dotson was treated for first-degree burns after the blaze, the cause of which is undetermined.

Sedalia woman loses home, suffers burns

A Sedalia woman was burned Wednesday morning when a fire of undetermined origin swept through her frame home, gutting the residence and causing an estimated $5,000 damage.

Mrs. Edla Dotson, 27, 1206 West 18th, was taken by police to Bothwell Hospital where she was treated and released for first degree burns on her hand, face, arms and thigh. Her hair was also singed.

According to police, Officer Lloyd Simons, while on patrol, saw smoke coming from the home and called for the fire department.

The officer said he then saw Mrs. Dotson coming around from the back of the house and asked her if anyone else was in the home. She told Simons that no one else was there.

Simons said he asked if she knew how the blaze started and Mrs. Dotson told him that when she woke up she found the house on fire. She was then taken to the hospital.

One fireman said that when the fire trucks arrived, the interior of the one-story home was in flames. Two trucks were used to battle the blaze for more than an hour as small fires continued to break out along the roof and in the area of the attic.

Although the cause of the fire has been listed as undetermined, Assistant Fire Chief Chester Anderson said the way the fire spread may indicate the possibility of some type of explosion inside of the home.

Anderson explained that no one portion of the home was more extensively burned than another, and that all areas seemed to have caught fire at the same time. This is why the explosion theory is being considered.

Damage to the house was listed at $3,000, while the loss to the contents was valued at $2,000.

Evidence is lacking in Buis murder case

No charges will be filed at this time against Mary Baber, the 33-year-old girlfriend of Charles L. Buis, Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming said Wednesday.

Miss Baber is the chief suspect in the late December murder of Buis, a 40-year-old former sergeant at Whiteman AFB. His partially decomposed body was found Feb. 23 in his parked camper on a camper sales lot on South Highway 65. He had been shot in the heart with a .22 caliber weapon.

"We simply don't have enough evidence to file any murder charge at this time," Fleming said. He added, though, that the case is not closed.

Miss Baber was taken into custody last week in Sanford, N.C., after she earlier had been seen in Memphis, Tenn., driving Buis' 1967 Chevrolet. The car was believed taken from the camper sales lot about the time Buis was killed. Miss Baber was picked up by Sanford authorities on a charge of driving under the influence of alcohol.

Fleming said that to his knowledge Miss

Baber is still in jail in Sanford awaiting trial on the driving charge. He said if the woman were to post bond, she could not be detained in the North Carolina jail on the request of authorities here. Charges would have to be filed here, Fleming said, before Miss Baber could be refused release from jail.

So far authorities have not been able to find the weapon that was used to kill Buis, Fleming said.

Authorities uncovered a .22 caliber rifle in Buis' car in late December in Memphis after police arrested Miss Baber for driving violations. Miss Baber reportedly was driving the car at the time.

Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said the rifle was processed by the Highway Patrol and ballistics tests showed that it was not the weapon which killed Buis.

Fleming said that until authorities come up with a murder weapon or other evidence, no charges probably will be filed. The prosecuting attorney also said that the investigation has uncovered no witnesses to the shooting.

Two mayoral candidates address Chamber board

Democratic mayoral candidate George Thompson, speaking Tuesday to the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce board of directors, said he has changed his mind about abolishing the city Economic Development Board.

Originally Thompson said he would be for elimination of the board in order to let the council and mayor handle interviews and selection of a person to fill the economic director vacancy. Thompson said at the time, in an address before the Sedalia Federation of Labor in February, that he felt the board was wrong when it didn't interview some of the people who applied for the position.

He told the Federation of Labor, "I feel personally that I want to be directly responsible for hiring and interviewing this man, because I will be working closely with him."

"I was wrong about this," he said

Tuesday night. "I now know more about the operations of the board and I feel it should be retained."

Thompson added that he "would like to be a leader in the group 'if and when it resumes its quest for an economic development director'."

If such an effort is authorized, Thompson indicated, "the first man I would like to bring down to interview is the gentleman that was originally selected."

The board, in December, recommended Chuck Elliot, Trenton, but the City Council in January declined to approve his hiring. Elliot is executive director of the Green Hills Regional Planning and Development Commission, which covers a nine-county area in North-Central Missouri.

Thompson, who said he was running for mayor because he believed he has "something definite to offer the people of the community," said, "I don't think the council will ever hire both a fulltime economic development director and also approve a fulltime mayor."

Because of his intent to "spend all the time necessary on the job," Thompson said he believed the filling of the economic developer's position is the more urgent of the two items.

Also addressing the board was Mayor Jerry Jones, who said he envisions Sedalia as "faced with a challenge ... to recognize problems we have and to seek to solve these problems."

Jones stated he believed the continuation of effective action to meet community problems is imperative for future progress "because you sure can't get to second base with one foot on first."

He described the "make up" of the Economic Development Board "as being excellent through the years ... a body which has been and will be instrumental in helping determine the future growth and stability of our community."

The most important requirement of city government, Jones said, "is our ability to accept the responsibility we have and continue to make a viable civilization in Pettis County. If we do not prove ourselves capable of assuming that responsibility, I think we all know what will happen."

Charles Lee, independent candidate for mayor, was unable to appear at the meeting.

In the regular business meeting, Chamber President Jake Siragusa announced his committee assignments for the coming year. Committee chairmen are: Louis Hughes Jr., Walter Savio and Robert

Can't break record by himself

By HANK AARON

No matter where I go, someone is bound to ask me if I think I will break Babe Ruth's record of 714 home runs. The Babe is a legend now. He created more excitement than any player who ever lived.

What I find so hard to believe is that Hank Aaron, a nobody from Mobile, Ala., is the first player in 40 years to challenge that home-run record. How did it come about?

Well, I sure didn't make it on my own. There were a number of people who helped me at crucial times. And because of those people I've tried to live my life a certain way during my 21-year career.

My parents were strict with us kids. We had rules, we did chores and we all went to the Baptist church every Sunday.

My father, Herbert Aaron, was a boilermaker's helper in a ship building company and worked long hours to feed and clothe his wife and six children. He didn't have much time to play ball or talk to us, but when he did, it meant something.

Like the time I skipped school to listen to the Brooklyn Dodgers game at the local poolroom. For some reason he got off early that day and saw me there. I thought I was in for it, but my father didn't punish me. He just asked some questions.

"I was listening to the Dodgers game," I said. "I want to be a baseball player. I'll learn more about how to play listening to the Dodgers than sitting in a classroom."

My daddy wasn't an educated man, but he and my mama had made up their minds that their children were going to get educated.

Hank Aaron

"You don't think those fellows playing in the big leagues are dumb, do you?" he asked me.

"No, but they didn't learn to hit and throw in a classroom," I answered.

"You can be a baseball player and get an education too," he continued earnestly.

"Son, I quit school because I had to go to work to make a living. You don't have to. I put 50 cents on that dresser each morning for you to take to school to buy your lunch and whatever else you need. I only take 25 cents to work with me. It's worth more to me that you get an education than it is for me to eat. So let's hear no more about dropping out of school."

You don't forget that kind of sacrifice by your father.

When I was 17, I was offered $200 a month to play ball for the all black Indianapolis Clowns. I could hardly believe it. That kind of money for a game you loved! Only when I promised to continue my education later (which I did) were my parents willing to let me accept.

So one day in May, 1952, my mother, two of my sisters and a brother took me to the Mobile railroad station for the trip to Charlotte, N.C., to join the Indianapolis team where they were having spring training.

I guess if I had real hero-worship for anyone, it would be for Jackie Robinson of the Brooklyn Dodgers. I was about 14 when he became the first black to play in the big leagues. I read everything I could find about him.

What fascinated me was that Jackie was an emotional, explosive ballplayer. Yet during that crucial first year in the big leagues, he didn't lose his temper in spite of a steady barrage of insults.

How did he keep control? I learned later that he prayed a lot for help. And he also had a sense of destiny about what he was doing, so much so that he felt God's presence with him. He learned to put aside his pride and quick temper.

Jackie's example helped me when I faced a similar situation while playing with Jacksonville, Fla., in the South Atlantic League back in 1953. Blacks had never played in this league before. Three of us — Horace Garner, Felix Mantilla and myself — were the ones to break the color line.

I'm not the crusader-type, and there were times, frankly, when I wanted out. Like those bus trips from the ball park after each game on the road. The white players were left at the hotel while Horace, Felix and I were taken to a private home.

The best way to lick this racial thing is to play well. Play so well that the fans forget your color. As one sports writer put it, "Aaron led the league in everything but hotel accommodations."

You learn a kind of acceptance. You set aside the thing that bugs you so that you can get on with doing what you know you're supposed to do.

I'm not trying to preach a sermon with these stories, but they do add up to something basic which I think has enabled me to play baseball year after year. Like my parents and Jackie Robinson and others, I'm learning to do without something I want at the moment to achieve the bigger thing ahead that is really right.

Certain parts of spring training in recent years have been agony and a punishment that I would have liked to skip. But at my age I have to discipline my body to keep on playing.

I also know this: I need to depend on Someone who is bigger, stronger and wiser than I am. I don't do it on my own. God is my strength. He gave me a good body and some talent and the freedom to develop it. He helps me when things go wrong.

The Lord willing, I'll set a new home-run record. If I don't that's okay too. I've had a wonderful time in baseball and have enough great memories to last two lifetimes.

Normal temperature varies

has him on quinidine sulfate, but the doctor thinks he will take him off it later.

Dear Dr. Lamb — My husband had open heart surgery nine months ago. He had three bypasses and some work done on the scar tissue of the heart muscle. After the surgery, he had a bad infection in his leg where the vein had been removed to make the bypasses. Since then he has had a temperature of 99 to 99½ and now and then on up to nearly 100 every day. Usually in the afternoon, whether he is working, or at home just resting.

His electrocardiograms are okay. Chest x-rays and blood tests are fine. Our doctor seems to think that maybe while he was on the heart-lung machine so long he had temperature on his subconscious mind when he went to sleep and it just registered that with him. Do you think this is possible? If this were true, why doesn't my husband have the temperature all the time? Say for instance when he wakes up in the morning? Can you give us some more reasons as to why he might have the temperature or some tests he could take to find out something more about it.

He is 61 before he had the surgery. He still works and he seems to be in pretty good health. He does tire easily part of the time, and the doctor still temperature is within normal limits.

Medicines sometimes cause temperature elevations. This specifically includes quinidine preparations such as your husband takes. Sometimes when a troublesome fever can't be explained it disappears after discontinuing medications.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Will you please say something in your column about what to include in the diet of a 72-year-old person who can no longer tolerate milk or cheese of any kind. Milk or cheese cause a variety of digestive disturbances.

Dear Reader — You need some calcium, and there is a danger that if you avoid milk products you may not be getting enough protein.

You can get quite a bit of calcium from canned salmon and sardines, particularly if you eat the bones. There is a lot of calcium in milk substitutes. In most localities you can get the milk substitute products used for babies who are allergic to milk. These are usually made with soybean products. You might try those. Finally, as far as the calcium is concerned, if you can't solve the problem by food your doctor can put you on some calcium tablets.

New tax bite proposed on petroleum industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee has voted to impose a relatively light new tax bite on the petroleum industry for the immediate future.

The tax-writing panel, climaxing a marathon meeting Tuesday night, tentatively agreed to impose a new wind-fall profits levy. But the proposal would raise virtually no additional revenue from American oilmen who would be exempt from the provision if they pump their energy crisis-generated profits back into the hunt for new energy sources.

The committee also gave temporary approval to a partial phase-out of the petroleum industry's 22 per cent depletion allowance. The allowance is worth about $2 billion annually to petroleum companies.

This phase-out plan is expected to bring in about $150 million next year, when it would take effect. However, by 1981, if fully effective, it could raise some $2.8 billion.

Under the current allowance, 22 per cent of gross income from oil and natural gas property can be deducted from taxable income up to a top of 50 per cent of taxable net income.

The committee also tentatively agreed to several changes in the tax treatment of domestic petroleum company income earned abroad, but these also are expected to yield relatively little new revenue.

The committee decided to use a sliding scale, based on rising oil prices, to phase out the depletion allowance over five years — but agreed that the allowance could not drop below 15 per cent for the first 3,000 barrels of oil daily per producer.

Following that five-year period, however, the allowance could disappear when 75 per cent of all oil is not eligible for the allowance over a year's time.

But the committee then added its so-called plowback feature, by which oilmen could escape paying this levy if they plow back their profits into exploration and development of new energy sources.

Ann Landers

Homosexual college, Lavender U., to open

Dear Ann Landers: I am a homosexual. I've been hearing some talk about a new school, soon to be opened, called Lavender University. It is, of course, for homosexuals only, both male and female, and I think it's a fantastic idea. Unfortunately, there are very few places besides gay bars where lonesome homosexuals can meet one another.

Will you please get some information on Lavender U. and give me some facts? Thank you very much. And thank you, too, for your enlightened approach to those of us who are "different." — Bay Area Admirer.

Dear Bay: "Lavender U." is scheduled to open in San Francisco later this year. The school will offer no degrees and will have no campus. The fees will be established by the faculty. Many classes will be held in the homes of the instructors until they are able to construct or buy a building.

The courses they plan to offer are Greek literature, metaphysics, photography, opera appreciation, modern dance, jewelry-making, and hiking.

One of the problems the innovators anticipate is that some heterosexuals might try to enroll. They say they want only homosexuals, but there is no way to make a person prove he is gay. I hope they don't spend too much time worrying about this "obstacle" since I seriously doubt that a school of this type would attract many straights.

Dear Ann Landers: Whenever we meet another couple for cocktails, and the check arrives, my husband manages to leaf through his wallet just long enough so that the other fellow pays it.

This embarrasses me to death. How can I get this clip artist to pay our way? Please suggest something subtle. — Married To A Sponge.

Dear Married: Sorry, but a guy whose hide is as thick as your husband's wouldn't respond to anything subtle. You'll have to hit him with a sledge hammer. Suggested line when the check appears: "Oh, no — THIS time my husband is going to be the host. We were YOUR guests last time." Keep track and make the sponge alternate, whether he likes it or not.

Dear Ann Landers: My boyfriend and I are both 17. We've been hassling about drugs and I need somebody on my side.

I tried grass a year ago. It was fun but I got mixed up a lot and forgot things, especially what time it was. My parents raised hell with me when I came in past curfew one night and I decided to knock it off.

Now my boyfriend is into acid and insists there is nothing wrong with it. He claims "recent studies" have turned up no evidence that LSD is damaging to the chromosomes. He keeps bugging me to try it.

I've heard that kids have died from bad trips. Let's have some facts. — N.N.P.

Dear N.: Your boyfriend is wrong. There is still some questions about chromosomal damage from LSD (and also pot). The dangerous aspects of dropping acid are the depressions following the euphoria and the hallucinations which sometimes return after several months. Many acid freaks have jumped off rooftops (thought they could fly), and walked into traffic and in front of trains (believing they were indestructible). LSD is dynamite. It can blow your mind. Leave it alone.

Union official says goal is to reinstate firemen

An official of the International Association of Firefighters called a press conference Wednesday morning to discuss the continuing feud between Pettis County Firefighters Local No. 2228 and the Pettis County Court.

Joe McMahon, union vice president from St. Louis, said union officials will await the outcome of an arbitration hearing before deciding what action to take in the dispute.

The hearing involves the County Court's firing last September of union firefighter Danny Taylor, LaMonte. The hearing originally was scheduled for early this year but has been postponed several times due to health problems of two of the County Court judges.

President takes morning stroll in Houston

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — President Nixon took an early morning stroll in downtown Houston today, stopping for coffee at a corner drugstore and talking to people on the street.

Nixon conducted a televised news conference Tuesday night before a meeting of broadcasters and vowed again that he would not resign.

Accompanied by Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler and White House photographer Oliver Atkins, Nixon walked two blocks from his hotel to the Keystone Drugstore early today.

The White House said the President's outing was spontaneous. No newsmen were on hand.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald Warren told reporters the people Nixon met on the street "offered him words of support."

Later in the morning, Nixon met privately with Texas Republicans.

During his TV-radio news conference Tuesday night, Nixon firmly rejected a call by Sen. James L. Buckley, Con.-R.-N.Y., that he resign for the good of the presidency.

Nixon contended the whole world "needs a strong American president, not an American president who every time the polls go down says, 'Well, maybe I better resign.'"

Before returning in the afternoon to Washington, the President planned to tour the Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center near Houston, where U.S. astronauts and Soviet cosmonauts will train for a joint space mission scheduled for 1975.

Nixon also will present distinguished service medals from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to the crew of last year's record-setting Skylab mission, Marine Lt. Col. Gerald Carr, Air Force Col. William Pogue and Dr. Edward Gibson.

The President's news conference was in an opera house before some 3,000 invited guests who frequently applauded his responses to questions.

The hour-long question-answer session came during the convention of the National Association of Broadcasters, with the questioning handled by broadcast news directors and selected White House correspondents.

Opfer trust fund established here

A special trust fund for the Eunice Opfer family reached $1,097.71 Tuesday afternoon, it was reported by Mrs. Edwin Taylor, who heads the fund raising effort for the First Christian Church.

Mrs. Opfer, 32, 168 Autumn, and her five children, were seriously injured in a head-on collision on West Broadway in front of the Ramada Inn Friday night. The family is still hospitalized.

Mrs. Taylor said the idea for the fund drive evolved during a general discussion Sunday at the church. She said $455.53 was collected in the Heber Hunt School district, and that the Rotary Club donated $100 to the cause. More than $300 was collected on Sunday alone, she said.

Projects to further the effort include an auction, and a country and western music show March 30 at Convention Hall. Tickets for the latter may be obtained at Norma's Beauty Salon, she said.

First Christian Church's board of trustees is handling the trust fund as part of its World Outreach Program, Mrs. Taylor said. Anyone wishing to make a donation to the fund drive may call Mrs. Taylor at 826-9155 or 826-6818.

Hanging is said to be accidental

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WARSAW — A 49-year-old Benton County man accidentally hanged himself Sunday afternoon in his trailer home 4 miles south of here.

Benton County sheriff's officers identified the man as Robert G. Thomas, Kaysinger Mobile Home Park. He was an employee of the trailer park.

Deputy Sheriff Robert Hamner said Thomas' nude body was discovered about 5 p.m. Monday. Sheriff's officers were notified a short time later.

Hamner said Thomas was found in a sitting position in the bedroom floor of his mobile home. A rope was tied around his neck, strung over the bedroom door and tied to the outside doorknob.

Officers said Thomas apparently hanged himself while participating in a solitary sexual act.

There was no evidence of foul play, Hamner added, and the case is closed.

McMahon said Wednesday he would contact arbitration board members to see if the scope of the hearing could be expanded to include recent developments between the union and County Court.

Last Friday the court dismissed Fire Chief Robert Sisemore and replaced him with 21-year-old Ronnie Ollison of Green Ridge. Sisemore had not been on the job since suffering injuries in an auto accident last April.

The day before he was fired, Sisemore criticized the County Court for denying him six months' salary after he was injured. Other county employees, he said, received salaries in similar situations.

Western District Judge John Bluhm, the only County Court member at the courthouse Wednesday, said he would favor expanding the scope of the arbitration hearing "if that's the answer to get to the bottom of the situation. But I want the whole story to come out," he added.

McMahon said the union's main goal now is to get Sisemore and Taylor reinstated as firefighters with the department. The union maintains that both men were fired because of their union activities.

McMahon said the union will file a civil suit in court to get the firemen reinstated, "if that's what it's going to take."

Besides Sisemore and Taylor, Howard Teague and Robert Paxton are also members of Local 2228. Only Paxton is still working for the fire department.

Rebozo is questioned by committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, President Nixon's closest friend, was interrogated under oath by the Senate Watergate committee today about a campaign contribution from Howard Hughes.

Rebozo, a banker, arrived for an executive session in response to a subpoena.

Rebozo is a leading character in a story of top-level campaign finance that began with a $100,000 payment from billionaire Howard Hughes.

The story includes allegations that one consideration may have been the favorable resolution of federal antitrust action aimed at Hughes' Las Vegas gambling and hotel interests.

Its most recent chapter was the dumping of $100,000 in old $100 bills on a committee table by a Hughes emissary.

Sources have said the committee has learned that the idea of a Hughes contribution first arose during the 1968 presidential campaign at a luncheon conversation between Nixon, Rebozo and Richard Danner, later to become manager of the Hughes-owned Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas.

According to Danner's testimony, the money was not immediately forthcoming.

A $50,000 payment is said to have been made in 1969 or 1970.

A second $50,000 installment allegedly was made in 1970.

In addition, an independent government regulatory agency is said to have evidence that a third $50,000 payment may have been made.

The timing of the payments is considered crucial by investigators because some of the dates on which the money may have been turned over to Rebozo coincide with negotiations between Danner and then-Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell concerning the antitrust implications of Hughes' effort to buy the Dunes Hotel in Las Vegas.

Rebozo earlier told the committee that all of the money remained in a safe untouched for three years and was not used in the 1972 campaign for fear subsequent controversy and turmoil inside the Hughes empire might embarrass the President.

The money was returned by Rebozo to a Hughes representative in the summer of 1973, allegedly after Rebozo took Danner to the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., to talk with Nixon. The White House has said the money was not mentioned at the meeting.

Rebozo has said the only person he ever told about the $100,000 was Rose Mary Woods, the President's personal secretary.

Miss Woods is scheduled to testify under oath about the matter Friday.

service and was allowed to use sponsorship accounts to trade for food.

There was no wire service, so he bought a Seattle Star and rewrote it for a 15-minute newscast every night.

In 1938 he went to CBS in Los Angeles, as correspondent for 11 Western states. In 1951 he switched to ABC in Los Angeles, and four years later moved to NBC in New York.

When Huntley went back to Montana there was talk of his running for the Senate. But he said he found Mike Mansfield was going to run again and "you'd be an idiot to run against Mansfield in Montana."

Instead, he did TV commercials, taped a radio show, and promoted Big Sky a rich man's resort near Bozeman, Mont.

He was married twice. He had two daughters by his first wife, Ingrid Rolin. They were divorced in 1959. His second wife was Tipton Stringer, once a weather lady for a Washington TV station.

Draft lottery for young men born in 1955

WASHINGTON (AP) — Men born Feb. 28 drew No. 1 in today's draft lottery for the nearly two million young men born in 1955.

The prime number was not picked out of the plastics drums holding the numbers until the standby lottery was almost completed.

Before that the young students had picked Jan. 5 as the No. 2, Feb. 16 as No. 3, Sept. 24 as No. 4, June 27 as No. 5, March 13 as No. 6, March 6 as No. 7, March 24 as No. 8, and Oct. 22 as No. 9.

About two-thirds of the way through the drawing the highest number, 365, was assigned to April 29.

The lottery was being held as usual in case it becomes necessary to resume inducting Americans into the Armed forces.

In remarks prepared for the second annual standby lottery to assign the numbers, John D. Dewhurst, deputy director of Selective Service said the purpose is "insurance — plain and simple."

Dewhurst, substituting for draft Director Byron V. Pepitone, who underwent heart surgery Friday, noted that no one had been drafted for 18 months as the military was being transformed into an all-volunteer force.

"The great experiment of maintaining a military force in peacetime of 2.2 million by volunteer means alone shows signs of achieving success," Dewhurst said.

All of the draft law remains in force, except for one sentence that gave the president authority to induct men. That sentence expired last June 30.

The only men involved in today's lottery are those who turn 19 this year. Most of them registered last year at their 18th birthday, as required by law, and were placed in a holding classification.

Only those who are assigned numbers 1 through 95 will be reclassified according to their current civilian status, to provide a standby pool of "readily inductible" men during 1975. None, however, will be given physical and mental exams or otherwise processed.

Those with numbers over 95 will remain in the holding classification and not hear from their draft boards again unless there is a national emergency requiring a change.

Soviets say China has not returned helicopter, crew

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today one of its helicopters made an emergency landing in China last week and the craft and its three-man crew have not been returned.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the Chinese had been asked to "see to it that the crew and the helicopter be found and returned to the Soviet side."

"But the Chinese authorities have not so far produced any reply to the statement," Tass said.

The Soviet Union and China are locked in an ideological war and disputes about their common border, where one million Russian troops are stationed.

Tass said the landing was made March 14 and the incident was reported to a Chinese frontier representative the same day.

Tass said the Soviet "frontier helicopter" flew into an area south of Beleshi in the Altai region to pick up a sick serviceman but lost its bearings in rough weather.

Pierce and Wallace were among six candidates in a primary election Tuesday to select four to run off for the two seats. The surviving four, in order of votes, William Brame, Howard Chappell, Floyd Box and James Hopkins.

Prosecutors expect to rest drug raid case

ALTON, Ill. (AP) — Prosecutors say they expect to rest their case today in the federal civil rights trial of 10 narcotics agents accused of illegally raiding and searching six homes in Southern Illinois last April.

Defense lawyers hope that will be the end of the proceedings.

Ronald Grimmig, an Illinois Bureau of Investigation agent who was along on three raids but was not indicted, was the only government witness left when the trial recessed Tuesday in U.S. District Court.

Defense attorney David Schippers of Chicago said that when Grimmig finishes his testimony, the defense will ask Judge Omer Poos for a directed verdict of acquittal.

The defendants, seven federal officers and three St. Louis policemen, admit that two of the raids were mistakes because they had wrong addresses. But Schippers argued in his opening statement that those were only mistakes, not criminal acts, and should be settled only in civil court, where victims of the raids have filed damage suits totaling nearly $2.5 million.

One of the victims of the mistaken raids, Donald Askew, 41, of Collinsville, told the five-woman, seven-man jury Tuesday about the night a score of agents hit his home by mistake.

His story: Askew, his wife, Virginia, 38, and their son Michael, 18, had just sat down to dinner when two young men he thought were hippies appeared on his back porch bearing shotguns.

About then other men began kicking the front door, demanding entrance. Askew tried to hold the front door shut and told Michael to leave.

When an agent outside, looking through a window, saw Michael begin to run, he kicked in a side door—a door secured by two locks and a half dozen 16-penny nails.

A man at the front window flashed a gold badge and Askew admitted two men, one of whom identified himself as federal agent Ted Williams.

Williams said they were looking for a drug pusher. Askew said there was none there unless the agents suspected his son.

Strike against UPI is in its third day

NEW YORK (AP) — A nationwide strike against United Press International by about two-thirds of its editorial employees entered its third day today.

Negotiations under the auspices of a federal mediator were held Tuesday and a third session was scheduled this afternoon.

A news embargo on the substance of the negotiations was agreed upon by both sides, according to a spokesman for the Wire Service Guild, which represents the striking newsmen and photographers.

The guild was demanding a 10 per cent across the board wage increase each year of a two year contract when negotiations broke off early Monday morning.

Top minimum pay under the old contract for experienced newsmen and photographers was $300 a week.

Other union demands include a 37½ hour work week for all employees, minimum weekly and daily car allowances, an agency shop that would require non-guild members to pay union dues, and increased company contributions to pension and medical insurance.

He also said there will soon be discussion with the Sedalia Building and Trades Council for the possible construction of a replica of the Maple Leaf Club. A site must also be chosen, it was reported.

Also, Melton said, the Sedalia Art Association plans to hold an art fair during the festival.

In final action, the board unanimously endorsed the upcoming Sedalia school tax levy increase vote.

Railroad cars for hauling fertilizer short of request

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Railroads are putting more boxcars to work hauling fertilizer but not as many as Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has said he requested from the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The ICC said Monday it ordered 11 railroads each to divert 100 covered hopper cars into traffic on the Seaboard Coast Line by April 1 to move fertilizer from Florida into farming areas.

Although industry officials and farm representatives were heartened by the news, the action fell far short of a request Butz said on March 13 he had submitted to ICC Chairman George M. Stafford.

A USDA news release said then that Butz had asked the commission to "use its emergency authority to direct railroads to make 3,000 more covered hopper cars and 1,000 more boxcars" available by May 1 for fertilizer shipments. Other USDA officials had said at a news conference a day earlier that a similar number of rail cars—a total of 4,000—would be needed immediately to help farmers get through the fertilizer pinch in time for spring planting.

Yet, in his letter to the ICC released Monday, Butz made no specific mention of the number of rail cars he requested. He said only that "the nation must have additional rail equipment made available" to move fertilizer into grain-producing areas.

In his letter to Stafford, Butz cited figures on fertilizer supplies and noted they were short in many farming areas. Based on reports from the Fertilizer Institute—an industry organization—Butz said there was a shortage of "1,014 covered hopper loads and 605 boxcar loads" in the week ended March 1.

The letter to Stafford released Monday was dated March 13, the same day as the department's Office of Communication issued an official news release saying Butz had asked the ICC to order a total of 4,000 rail cars into fertilizer service.

Although Butz was not available for comment, a spokesman said the discrepancy "probably was the result of the news release not being keyed to the letter," to Stafford.

The spokesman who asked not to be identified, said further under questioning that "it's another slip in our credibility."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new financial report by the Farm Credit Administration shows farmers borrowed a record $23.6 billion last year from cooperatively owned institutions, up nearly 41 per cent from 1972.

The report, issued by E.A. Jaenke, governor of the FCA, showed total loans outstanding as of Dec. 31 were $21.8 billion, a gain of 19.8 per cent.

Institutions involved in the cooperative Farm Credit System included federal land bank associations, production credit associations and banks for cooperatives.

What happened to long gasoline lines?

By JEFFREY D. ALDERMAN
Associated Press Writer

Where did all those gasoline lines go?

At the end of February, motorists in many communities found themselves waiting in agonizingly long gas station lines. In some sections of the country, especially in the Northeast, lines were hours long.

The country seemed on the verge of coupon gasoline rationing. Indeed, many of the hard-hit states initiated odd-even rationing plans on their own.

Then came March. Poof! The lines disappeared.

The gas-short states seemed to go from gasoline famine to a relative gasoline feast in a matter of days. Stations began opening on Sunday and weekend traffic picked up.

The average motorist, confronted with long lines one day and no lines the next, was puzzled by the quick return to a semblance of normal gasoline availability. Critics started saying that the oil companies had been holding back gasoline until the price went high enough to suit them.

There are a number of reasons cited by oil industry spokesmen, federal energy officials and industry observers for the turnaround. But the reason cited more often than any other is the federal decision to make additional gasoline available from company stocks at the end of February.

The Federal Energy Office released 11.2 million barrels on top of the regular monthly allotment. The idea was to ease lines which the FEO said were partially caused by panic buying.

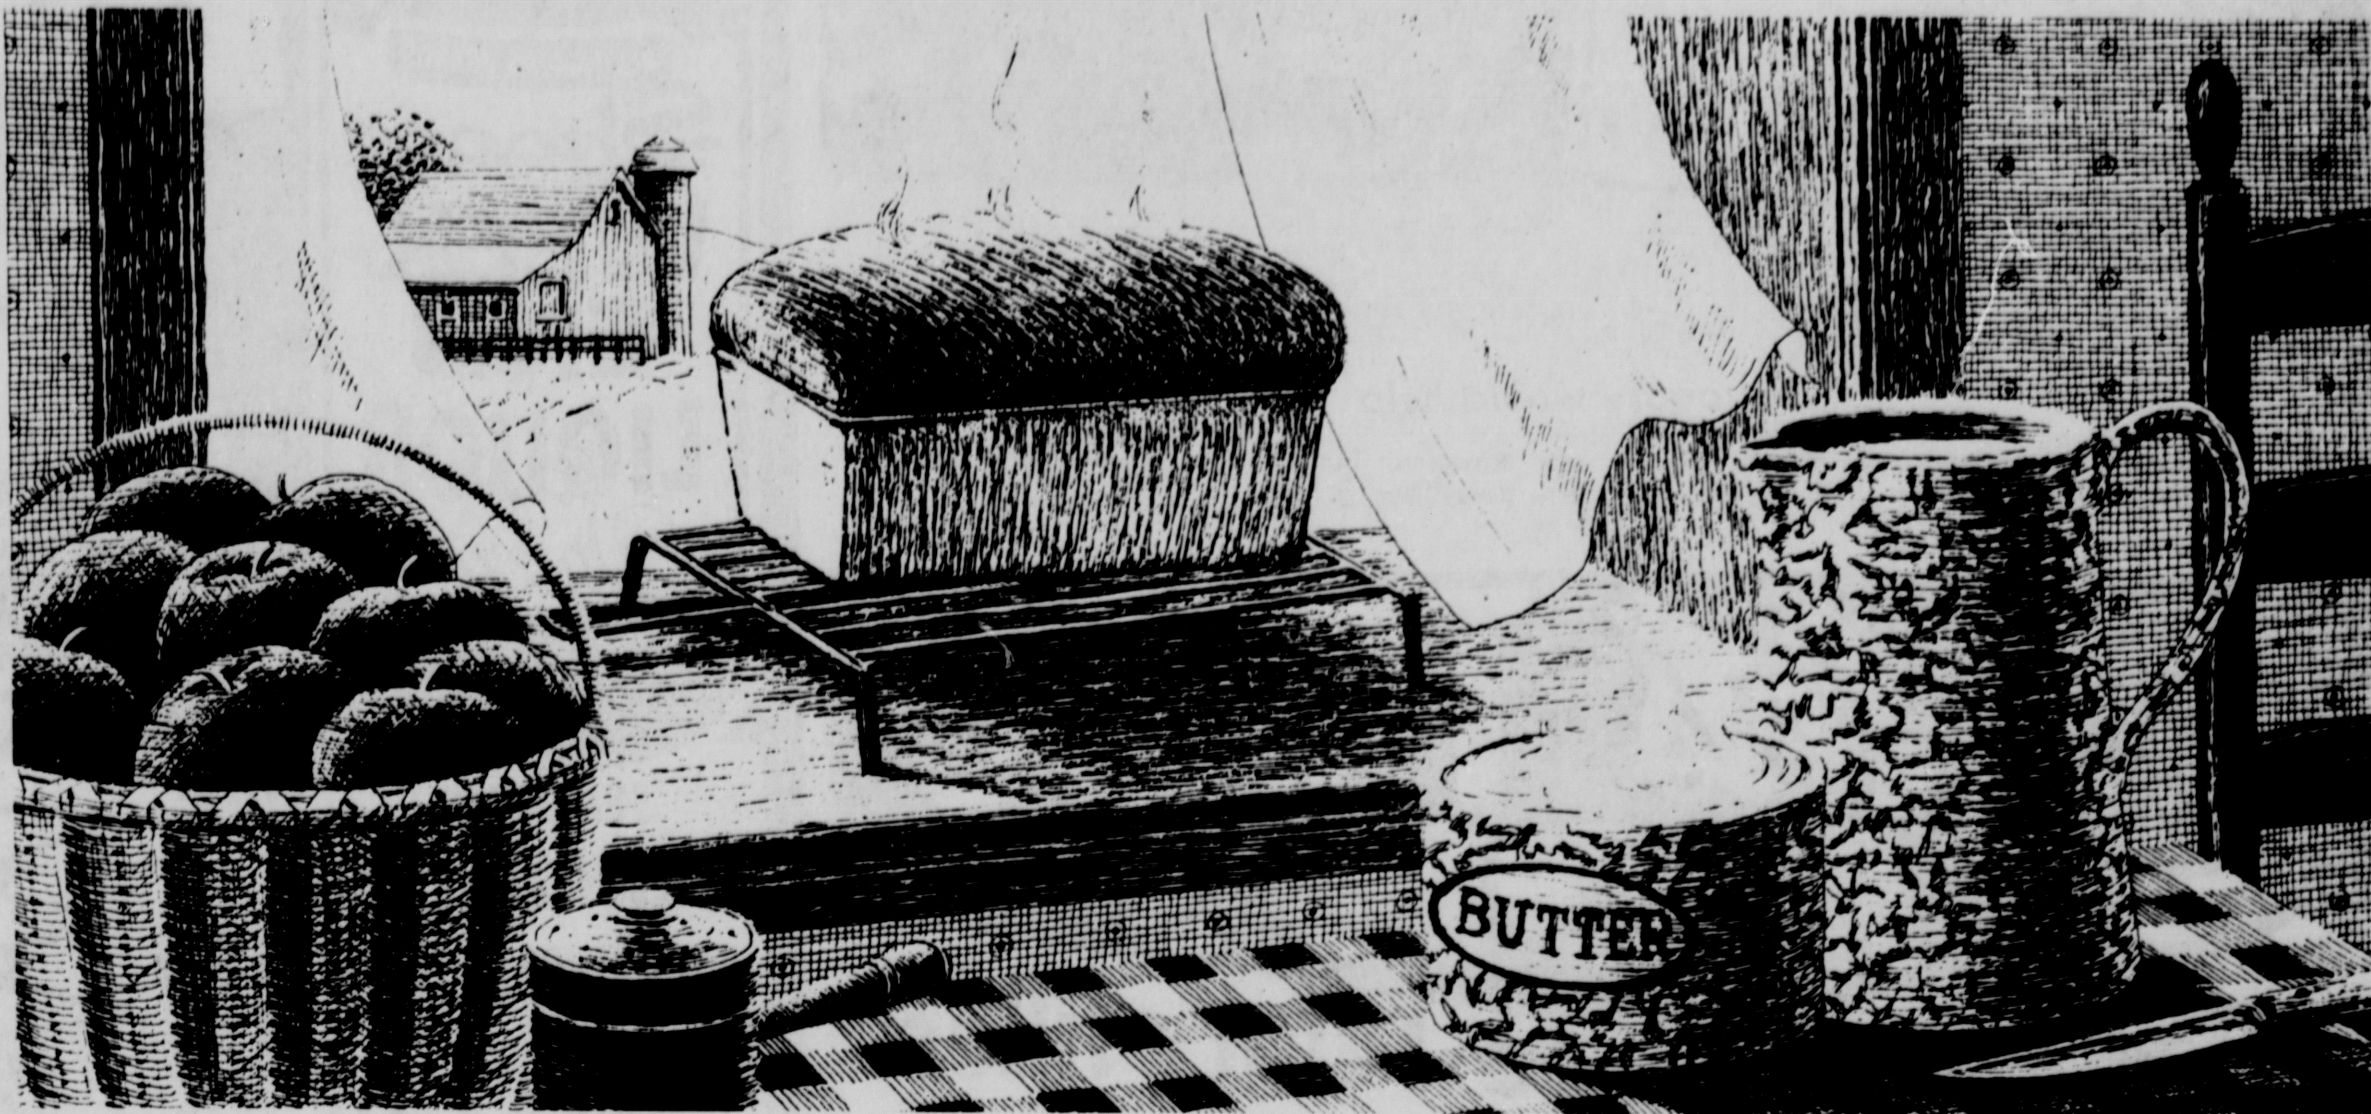

Some observers saw the move as an FEO attempt to buy enough time to straighten out its fuel allocation system. The system is designed to equalize supplies of gasoline nationwide, but the FEO itself admits the system wasn't working well in February.

The extra allocation from stocks didn't reach most service stations until the first week in March. It means service stations will have about six per cent more motor fuel available this month than last.

As the extra gasoline began arriving, the lines began shortening.

Once the gasoline was at the pumps, stations started lengthening hours and pumping more gasoline for each customer.

But unless more crude oil becomes available, the FEO will not be able to continue to release extra allocations of gasoline.

The taste of a simpler day. Taystee Old Fashioned Bread.

Life wasn't always rush-rush. Used to be that people took their time doing the things they liked. And didn't give up until they got what they wanted.

So when we set out to bake the finest-tasting bread we could, we took a page from those simpler days. And followed a recipe that took a lot more fussing. And more time.

The result: Taystee's Old-Fashioned Bread. A hearty, full-bodied loaf. Rich textured. A little moist. Slightly sweet. And with an oven freshness that's pure delight.

Try it. It's the bread you've always heard about. But couldn't buy until now. Taystee Old-Fashioned Bread. The taste of a simpler day.

Televised statement by SLA members rejected

By WILLIAM HELTON
Associated Press Writer
MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP) —

Randolph A. Hearst says he's disappointed that two accused murderers have been denied permission to read for television a statement they claim could help free his kidnapped daughter.

The SLA, which claims it kidnapped 20-year-old Patricia Hearst Feb. 4, has threatened to break off all communication with her family unless Little, 24, and Remiro, 27, appear on national television.

Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, promised further comment today on Judge Hall's ruling.

In turning down the request, Hall said, "If I agreed to this motion I would create an atmosphere that would result in the possibility of these men not receiving a fair trial in any part of this state and possibly the nation."

In nearby Oakland, where Little and Remiro are charged with the Nov. 6 cyanide-bullet assassination of Oakland Schools Supt. Marcus Foster, Municipal Court Judge Stafford

Buckley is scheduled to rule today on the television proposal. It was unclear what the effect of a positive ruling by Buckley would be since the consent of both judges is required because Little and Remiro face charges in both Contra Costa and Alameda counties.

Defense attorneys had said either Little or Remiro wanted to make a 5-to-10-minute statement before a lone cameraman and reporter in a courtroom with no questions permitted.

Meanwhile, organizers of Hearst's $2 million People In Need food giveaway promised a new progress report on efforts to revamp the program to meet SLA demands that high quality food be given to California's needy as a prerequisite to negotiations for Miss Hearst's release.

Farm roundup

Record world grain output now expected

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A buildup of world grain reserves by mid-1975 is likely if record crops materialize for U.S. farmers this year, says the Agriculture Department.

But more ample supplies of wheat and feed grains will bring mixed possibilities: lower food costs for consumers and a cutback in farm income because of reduced grain prices.

The possibilities were raised Tuesday by a report showing world grain output—wheat and feed grain—is now expected to jump 7.5 per cent to a record 965.5 million metric tons for the year ending June 30.

Looking ahead, the Foreign Agricultural Service said prospects point to world grain harvests totaling another record of 996.8 million tons in the 1974-75 season, a 3.2 per cent gain.

Officials said most of the increase would result from record U.S. wheat and corn crops projected for 1974 harvests.

However, large demand for grain in international markets is expected to continue, world harvests could outgain total use, meaning additional reserves by July 1, 1975, the report indicated.

Prices have soared the past year as many countries turned to the United States to help replenish granaries following reduced harvests in 1972-73.

"A serious slowdown could possibly cut 10 million tons off the projected consumption level," the report said. "If this happened stocks in major exporting countries as of June 30, 1975, could recover roughly four-fifths of the sharp decline which had occurred in the preceding two years."

The experts said also that larger harvests this year in other grain exporting countries will mean stiffer competition in international trade for U.S. farmers.

Thus, the report said, U.S. farm exports will decline in 1974-5. In earlier projections, department officials had estimated wheat exports, for example, will drop to about 1 billion bushels from a record 1.2 billion forecast for the year ending June 30.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recent rains have improved prospects for winter wheat in parts of the southwest where earlier dry weather had threatened the 1974 crop, according to Agriculture Department surveys.

"Wheat and oats responded well to the recent rains in Texas," the department said Tuesday in a weekly weather report. "Some non-irrigated wheat on the Texas high plains revived and showed moderate growth."

The crop in Kansas and Oklahoma "made rapid growth" last week as temperatures continued above normal. However, the report said, parts of the two states are still short of subsoil moisture reserves.

Russian medical scientists linked sunspots and flu epidemics, while a Soviet agronomist detected a relationship between the spots and poor crops, according to the National Geographic Society.

International Energy Co-op formed by farm cooperatives

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nineteen farm cooperatives have formed their own trading company with the purpose of trading grain and agricultural know-how for foreign crude oil and other energy products.

The National Council of Farm Cooperatives said Tuesday meetings will be held here later this week between federal officials and the newly formed International Energy Cooperative, Inc., to work out further details.

Formally organized March 7, the new co-op unit includes some of the nation's largest farm marketing, supply cooperatives and refineries.

Board chairman is Sigved Sampson, president of Midland Cooperatives, Inc., Minneapolis, who said the energy crunch has proved farmers cannot rely on traditional oil suppliers.

"We realized then that if we were to adequately supply farmers with fuel for food production, we'd have to form our own trading company to find more reliable suppliers," Sampson said in a statement issued by the council.

As outlined, the new trading company will:

—Purchase energy supplies abroad, including both crude oil and finished products.

—Trade agricultural commodities and explore the possibility of operating jointly owned food processing and marketing enterprises in host countries.

—Explore the possibility of building and operating jointly owned refineries in host countries, and help provide the latest in food production technology to foreign trading partners.

The council said farmer-owned cooperatives currently supply about 30 per cent of the total fuel used on U.S. Farms. One-third of that supply is from their own refineries and the remainder purchased from others as finished products.

Jack Thrasher, chief executive of the National Cooperative Refinery Association, McPherson, Kan., is president of the new group. He said negotiations are underway with "six major oil producing countries in Africa and the Middle East" for crude oil and other supplies.

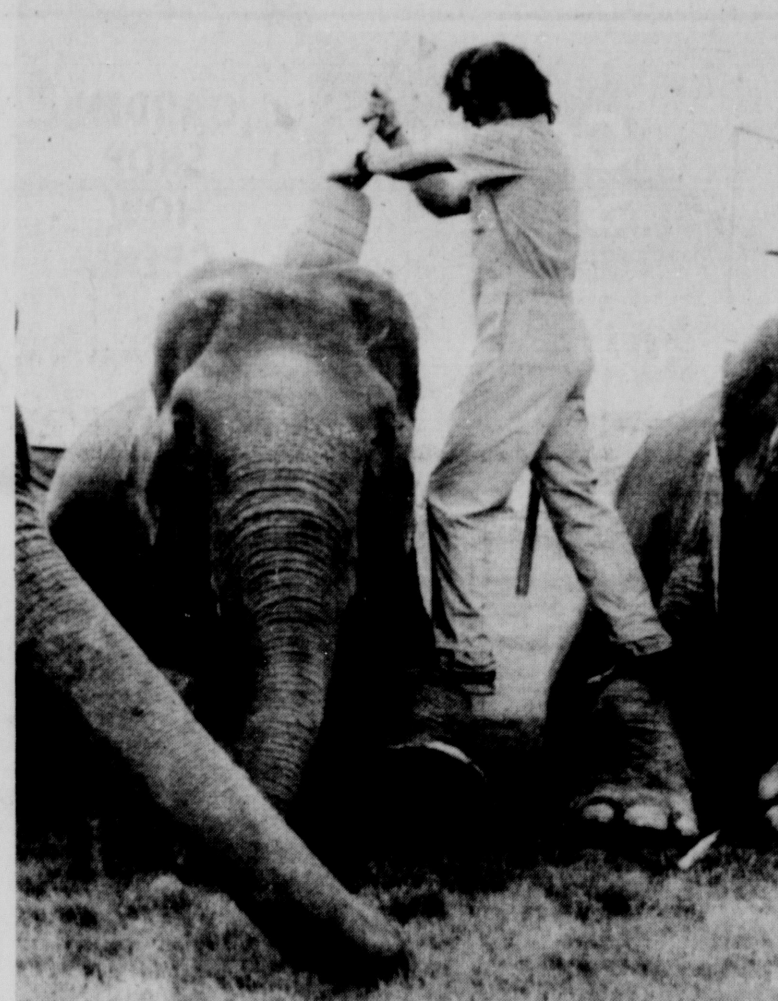

The other 17 co-ops in the new trading company are:

Agway Inc., Syracuse, N.Y.; CENEX, St. Paul, Minn.; CF Industries Inc., Chicago; FCX Inc., Raleigh, N.C.; FS Services, Inc., Bloomington, Ill.; Farm Services, Inc., Lansing, Mich.; Farmland Industries, Inc., Kansas City; Fruit Growers Supply Co., Van Nuys, Calif.; Gold Kist Inc., Atlanta; Indiana Farm Bureau Cooperative Association, Indianapolis; Land O' Lakes, Inc., Minneapolis; Landmark, Inc., Columbus, Ohio; MFC Services, Jackson, Miss.; Missouri Farmers Association, Inc., Columbia, Mo.; Southern States Cooperative, Inc., Richmond, Va.; Texas City Refining, Inc., Texas City, Tex.; and Tennessee Farmers Cooperative, La Vergne, Tenn.

Speeding tickets total about four times normal

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — More than four times the normal number of motorists have received speeding tickets since strict enforcement of the state's new 55 mile an hour speed limit went into effect Saturday, the Missouri Highway Patrol reported Tuesday.

According to Lt. Col. Dick Gehrig, assistant superintendent of the patrol, arrests for exceeding the new limit have been averaging about 350 a day since enforcement began, but he noted the number of those cited for exceeding the old 70 mile an hour limit have remained about the same, ranging between 75 and 100 daily.

"There isn't any question but that we're making a considerable number of arrests under the new law," Gehrig commented. "But as you travel the roads, I think it's pretty evident that the majority of people are complying."

The reduced limit went into effect officially on March 4, but the patrol gave drivers a 12-day grace period during which some 1,100 warnings were issued as motorists got used to driving at the slower rate.

Although violators of the new limit are subject to fines, no penalty points are assessed against their drivers' licenses unless they are found exceeding the old limit as well.

While Gehrig said it was too soon to determine if the new, enforceable 55 mile an hour limit had caused a reduction in highway accidents, he pointed out that accidents in January and February of this year numbered between 650 and 700 fewer than for the same two months a year ago.

Another possible indicator of the new limit's safety benefits is the patrol's fatality figures. There were 122 fatalities reported in Missouri this year compared with 239 on the same date a year ago.

"Of course," noted Gehrig, "That's an indication to some degree that traffic is down. It's not all due to the speed limits."

Ice skating's origins go back at least 5,000 years. Archaeologists have found animals' bones apparently used as skates during the Bronze Age in Pannonia, an area that is now in Hungary and Yugoslavia.

The trouble goes on and on in Northern Ireland

Belfast special

With a kind of rueful optimism, Linda Baynard puts out a sign advertising a bomb damage clearance, in front of the men's wear shop in Belfast where she works. It wasn't just "a" bomb: there's been an average of one a month on this block, she says. But business must go on, and sadly and determinedly Ulster hangs out its only sign of hope: "Bomb damage stock sale."

(AP)

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

BELFAST (AP) — It was what you might call a typical Irish day: Soft with the fall of rain and the musical talk of the people; harsh with the discordant noise of the troubles that won't go away.

A street singer with an accordion stood in front of the recently re-opened Woolworth's Store, still reeking of smoke from the fire bombs, and sang a sad ballad about someday going back to Ireland, be it only for the closing of the day.

As he sang, fire engines screamed down Royal Avenue, Belfast's main shopping street, to catch up with incendiary bombs going off in a printing plant a few blocks away.

Newsboys called out the afternoon headlines in a nasal sing-song: All about the big search for the teen-age killers of a policeman shot down the previous Saturday in broad daylight in front of crowds of Belfast shoppers. He was the 39th policeman killed since the Irish troubles re-erupted 4½ years ago.

A patrol of British soldiers in jungle fatigues and flak jackets moved down the avenue, almost unnoticed by the throngs of passers-by, hugging the building lines and ducking in and out of doorways with their rifles cradled in their arms.

Shoppers raised their arms and submitted to a body search at an army checkpoint, then opened their handbags and parcels for a security check before passing through a steel revolving gate that led to the bomber's mall, the fenced off inner streets of the shopping district where vehicle traffic was excluded as a precaution against car bombs that have devastated half the store fronts.

What nonsense are you singing? A woman emerging from a boarded-up clothing store turned on the sidewalk troubador.

"You're in Ireland now, and it may be the closing of the day for all of us."

He changed his tune to that dear little town in the auld County Down, but the choice was not a happy one. That night bombs erupted in Newry, Portaferry and several other towns in the old County Down, including a massive car bomb that wrecked the business district of Downpatrick. If St. Patrick really is buried under the granite boulder marked Patric in the cathedral yard of that once quiet market town, he must be wondering what's become of the island of saints and scholars he rescued from the pagan druids 1,500 years ago.

The question was put to a shipyard worker standing in the rubble of where up until recently Paddy Lamb's public house used to stand.

"Saints and scholars," he laughed derisively. "Don't be daft. There hasn't been a saint canonized in Ireland in 900 years. We've become the island of assassins and murderers."

He admitted speaking from the Shankill or Protestant side of the so-called peace line that has divided Belfast into two armed camps since the troubles broke out again. In the clearing left by the vanished pub, a giant crane named Big Ian loomed over the Harland and Wolff shipyards, where despite the devastation downtown, work is ahead of schedule on a half-million ton jumbo tanker. The crane is named for the Rev. Ian Paisley, the fiery Protestant leader whose hard-lining loyalist faction in favor of continuing Ulster's link with Britain has just won 11 of the 12 Northern Ireland seats in the newly elected British Parliament.

At the heart of the Irish question, backed by the guns and bombs of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (the IRA) and now opposed by the bombs and guns of the Ulster Defense Association (the UDA), is the old Republican dream of reuniting the six British-ruled and Protestant-dominated counties of Northern Ireland with the 26 Catholic-dominated counties of the south that declared their independence in 1921.

If it wasn't for the St. Patrick's Day cards in the windows and the signs advertising the health-giving attributes of Irish malt beverages, Belfast and the towns along the border on the Ulster side might be mistaken in the rain for Vietnam or the Gaza strip. The police stations and military posts are piled high with sandbags, curtained off with camouflage nets and coils of barbed wire and hidden bomb-proof fences of sheet metal.

At night the streets are deserted, save for an occasional prowling armored car. Most business districts have become control zones, where parking is forbidden at all times.

"Fear is the only word for this city," said a Belfast taxi driver named Malachy. "When a car comes along the street at night, you instinctively step into a doorway till it goes by. You cross the street, if you see some fellows coming the other way. There's genuine tension here, fear of assassination. A knock at the door, and you go to an upstairs window to see who it might be."

In the past three years, 216 British soldiers, 40 local defense troopers, 39 policemen and 606 civilians have died in Ireland's urban warfare, and thousands have been wounded, burned out of their homes, maimed in the rubble of a bombed-out pub or factory.

"At evening, coming up the Crumlin Road to the Ardoyne Chapel, I never know whether the sky is crimson with the setting sun or another bus is on fire," said Helen, a waitress in a downtown hotel who walks home two miles every night because she lives in a no-go area where the buses won't go. Both the IRA and the UDA have organized taxi services at 10 pence — 25 cents — a head to ferry shoppers to and from the no-go areas.

The Papes — for Papists — as the Catholics are called, are ferried up the Falls Road: The Prods, for Protestants, negotiate the same hill along the Shankill Road.

In recent months, there has been an escalation of firepower in the guerrilla tactics. Stones and petrol bombs have given way to semi-automatic weapons, rocket launchers and several mortar attacks on military and police posts.

There was even an unsuccessful air raid when three men and a girl hijacked a helicopter and dropped two bombs in milk churns on the police headquarters at Strabane in County Tyrone. One landed in the river, the other went wide and failed to go off.

From the mountains of Mourne to the Giants Causeway on the Antrim coast, the Irish in the troubled northeast corner get used to driving around barrels and over bumps when they pass a police station, and to ringing the shop bell and being frisked when they enter a store in a control area.

"I'm getting used to it, but I'm not getting any braver," sighed Patricia, clerk in a shoe store. Three times she has helped to sweep the water and the broken glass out of the shop after a bombing. "I'd move away tomorrow, if I could afford it. You'd be afraid to say anything around here. People saw that policeman shot Saturday. They saw the boys run away. But they aren't say boo or they'd be dead too."

In Ulster, the grim signs of the times are there for all to see. In the park across from the Rev. Ian Paisley's Free Presbyterian Church is a large police billboard: "Murder. Brian McDermott. Someone, somewhere, saw or heard something. Ring the police at 55150."

Crossing the bridge over the River Foyle into Derry's Bogside, one encounters an even larger billboard: "If you have information about murders, explosions and other serious crimes, call the number below in complete confidence."

But the murders go unsolved and attitudes harden as the billboards peel and even the graffiti on the neighborhood walls grows faint with time but not with fervor: "Prods out" "IRA murders" "You are now entering free Derry" "British killers go home."

When the fire engines leave and the smoke fades to only noisome aromas, Ulster sadly but determinedly hangs out its only sign of hope: "Bomb damage stock sale."

A perky young miss in a men's wear shop in Belfast is asked if any of the goods actually were damaged by a bomb.

"Which bomb are you referring to?" answers 21-year-old Linda Baynard. "Do you mean the one last week, the week before that or the big one on November first? We've averaged about a bomb a month on this block."

With quick bomb damage compensation from the Northern Ireland government, shops and businesses keep coming back from the shards and the ashes. On Belfast's Royal Avenue, three bombed out shops stand forlorn and windowless in a gutted row, then comes Paige's Shoe Store, getting ready for a grand re-opening on March 19.

"It's a triumph of economics over fear," explained a downtown merchant. "Businesses that rebuild get their money right away from the government. Those going out of business have to wait years for their compensation claims."

Irish wit flickers through the terrorists' ashes. A current joke making the rounds of the border pubs concerns a lad who calls up an oft-bombed movie house to inquire what time the main feature goes on.

Caught in the middle of the murderous Irish madness, the 16,000 British troops in Ulster count the days until their tour is up. For them Ireland north or south is a hostile land. "We got nine days to go," said a royal artillery sergeant on duty at a checkpoint in the shadow of Derry's ancient city walls. "Maybe Paddy will soon blow the rest of this place off the map and we won't have to come back here."

Despite the bombs and the bullets, Ulster's economy is enjoying a boomlet, especially the textile and electronics industries. Her agriculture is hopeful of reaping rich rewards from the Common Market and there is even hope of the tourists coming back.

Fear is watchword

Shoppers undergo body searches, and open their handbags and parcels for a security check, before being allowed into a fenced-off shopping area in Belfast. Vehicle traffic has been banned from the area, as a precaution against the car bombs that have devastated half the store fronts. Fear is the only word for this city, says a citizen, summarizing the effect of living in constant tension. (AP)

Mind your money*Free legal help is available

The cost of hiring a lawyer, for many Americans, can be prohibitive. You can find free legal help, however, if you know where to look for it.

Legal aid agencies or societies are available if you have limited means. So are Legal Services (sometimes given other names) sponsored by the Office of Economic Opportunity. Phone company information operators usually know the numbers and addresses.

Local university law schools often have information service and consumer help programs for people seeking lower level legal coaching. If you can latch onto a law student, you can at least find out the names and addresses of local resources such as small claims courts, arbitration panels and the like.

Local governments sometimes have consumer protection departments which can handle certain kinds of disputes or, at least, give you some advice on what to do.

If you're having a really tough family fight and are fearful of what might happen (injury or money loss), you can go to the local District Attorney's office and ask for the "family unit." A "peace warrant" can be drawn up where the offending party is called in for a hearing. A judge can order the offender to stop molesting or threatening. No charge for this.

The Federal government also has a variety of free or inexpensive legal services available. For example, if you purchased a TV set, appliance, a car or whatever, on consumer credit, and you've gotten a lemon, you might be able to get your money back under the Truth in Lending Act.

Ask your bank for the address of the nearest Federal Reserve regional office or branch. Then, write the "Fed" for a booklet on your rights under Truth in Lending. Check your consumer credit contract with the model in the booklet to see if some detail might have been omitted or is incorrect.

If you feel something is amiss (a blank that wasn't filled or an incorrect figure), send a query along with a copy of your loan agreement to the Federal Trade Commission (listed in the booklet) for possible conformation of your suspicions. If the FTC thinks there might have been a violation of Truth in Lending, you take your case to a lawyer who should have a relatively easy time getting your money back. Truth in Lending violators also have to pay an additional prize of from $100 to $1,000 plus all your lawyer's fees and court costs.

The Federal Bankruptcy Court is another haven for the oppressed. If you are unable to pay all your debts, you may qualify for a "Wage Earner Plan" under Chapter 13 of the bankruptcy laws. Through the plan, your debts are paid off under supervision of the court. You're given plenty of time and no creditor can repossess anything you own, hit you with extra interest or late charges or harass you in any way. For more information, get in touch with the "Standing Trustee" for Bankruptcy Court (found in the phonebook under U.S. court listings).

The trustee may suggest that you get a lawyer but the lawyer's fees are regulated by the court and are relatively inexpensive. Having your debts paid off through the court is not considered actual "bankruptcy."

Taxpayers who have a dispute with an Internal Revenue Service agent over the size or appropriateness of a tax deduction can get a fair hearing in front of a neutral judge through the Small Tax Court. If the amount in dispute is less than $1,500, you pay a $10 filing fee and your case is quickly heard. Judges lean over backward to help taxpayers present their cases. You don't need a lawyer. The IRS agent must give the court's address.

These are just a few of the legal resources available to consumers who need help. In upcoming columns, we'll investigate other ways to get the most for your legal care dollar.

Unusual bird show here

Some of the world's most powerful and aggressive birds of prey will show their skills and hunting ability when they visit the Missouri State Fairgrounds from 3 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

The event is sponsored by the Friends of the Birds of Prey, a Columbia organization seeking to inform the public about the various species of birds to be exhibited here.

The show was organized by Reinhold Dembinski, one of the first persons in Missouri to raise falcons in captivity. Also on hand will be Dominik Kollinger, considered one of Europe's leading falcon and eagle masters.

Kollinger has conducted many shows in Europe and visited most major European capitals. Among one of his most recent stops was Moscow. He holds several international hunting and show trophies in Europe.

The two men will bring eight different types of birds of prey here to demonstrate their skill and hunting ability. Eagles, falcons and hawks will be among them. The two men plan to demonstrate their skill and hunting ability. Eagles, falcons and hawks will be among them. The two men plan to demonstrate how the birds hunt, and explain how they live in the wild.

The show will be staged in

Powerful predator

This Golden Eagle, named "Blizzard," perches on the arm of Dominik Kollinger, one of Europe's leading falcon and eagle masters, and demonstrates his mighty wing span, which exceeds more than two yards. Blizzard is one of several birds of prey that will be part of an exhibit at the Missouri State Fairgrounds here Sunday afternoon.

front of the grandstand and animal pelts will be used in hunting demonstrations. Each of the birds in the show has been trained to return to its handler, Dembinski said.

One of the larger birds to be exhibited will be "Blizzard," a Golden Eagle with a wing span that exceeds two yards. Blizzard, it was reported, has been trained to hunt foxes and coyotes and will give demonstrations of his skill.

Those attending the exhibit will have an opportunity to view the birds up close, Dembinski said. He said his group hopes to provide a place in Columbia where the birds may be raised.

Contracts are signed by school

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KNOB NOSTER — Contracts for four additional school administrators were approved at a recent meeting of the board of education here.

Signed to return for the 1974-75 school year are Richard Roda, high school principal; Thomas Fairlie, junior high principal; Michael Larson, elementary principal; and Mrs. Louise McDowell, Whiteman elementary principal.

In other business, the school budget, calling for an estimated total expenditure of $1,986,149, was approved. It was announced that local and county school tax revenue will total $478,047; state funds, $804,309; and federal monies, $634,705.

It was also announced that the annual school board election will be April 2. District residents living in Johnson County will vote at the Knob Noster city hall, while Pettis County residents living in the district will vote at the LaMonte city hall.

Superintendent James E. Jageman reported that incumbent board members Lloyd Franklin and Don Sartin have filed for re-election. Also filing for the board were David Corbett and Barbara Bratton. The deadline for filing, he said, is Friday.

It was decided at the meeting to re-establish beginning band for sixth graders and to employ teacher aides for kindergarten classes, providing suitable personnel can be secured and the need for such additional help becomes apparent.

The board accepted the resignations of Mrs. Norma Hall, elementary special education teacher, and John R. Fletcher, instrumental music instructor.

Workshop, film planned by library here

Boonslick Regional Library here will hold a special film and fun meeting from 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday at the library, with a showing of the film "Bim" highlighting the afternoon.

The film depicts the story of a boy and his pet donkey. Following the film, those attending will be given a free booklet concerning kites. A kite workshop will also be held for those wishing to enter the Sedalia Kite Tournament March 30, open to children in grades one through six.

Candidates speak to local GOP group

Four Republican candidates for city office addressed the Pettis County Republican Women's Club Tuesday at Bothwell Hotel.

Mrs. Roy Alexander introduced the candidates, who spoke to the group briefly. They were Mayor Jerry Jones, who is running for re-election; Allen Hawkins, First Ward council candidate; Lyle McMullin, Second Ward council hopeful; and Ralph Hamlin, who is running for municipal judge.

Purchase of equipment for hospital approved

The Bothwell Hospital Board of Trustees approved the purchase Tuesday night of hospital equipment valued at $46,430.70.

The hospital also will have a new switchboard system by April 1, it was reported. It will include a back-up board for emergencies and days when calls are unusually heavy.

The board also approved a change in the bylaws of the Hospital Auxiliary. The change will enable members of the auxiliary to form a committee to make themselves available in case of emergencies such as last Friday's accident on East Broadway in which eight persons were seriously injured.

Feedback said members of the auxiliary "would like to make their homes available and would like to help people" such as out-of-towners who need emergency medical attention.

"This would be another way to serve the hospital and serve the patients ... they would work closely with George Thomas, social services director," he said.

Dr. Elliot Braverman, hospital chief of staff, said he is looking forward to completion of the hospital's new emergency room.

Regarding Friday's accident he said, "With two adults and five children in the emergency room, there was quite an overflow."

James Keck, chairman of the board's building committee, reported that the city will black-top 14th street between Ingram and Thompson streets. However, he said the hospital will have to provide curb and gutter for the area under a private contract. The board authorized Keck to discuss with the city the possibilities of a six-foot set-back on 14th to alleviate traffic around the Children's Therapy Center.

In other business, Feedback told the board that the Cole Camp hospital appreciation fund drive resulted in nearly $5,900 in donations. Most of the money will be given to Bothwell Hospital and smaller amounts will go to hospitals in Windsor and Clinton.

Board chairman Bob Gardner said, "It was a mighty nice thing to do ... they did it all on their own."

He said the donors want the money to be used for rooms in the hospital's new addition. A hospital representative will be presented with the check Friday in Cole Camp.

Feedback also reported that proceeds from the Hospital Auxiliary's telethon totaled $1,039.15.

Explains need for tax levy

Dr. Allan Henningsen, Superintendent of Schools, met with eight members of the Sedalia Federation of Labor at the Labor Hall, 1102 East Third, Tuesday night to answer questions concerning the April 2 school tax levy in which the Sedalia Board of Education is seeking a 37 cent increase.

Henningsen told the group that although property in the county is being re-assessed, there is no guarantee that the school system will get more money to operate.

"Re-assessment is basically equalization," Henningsen said. He said that for the last several years the local school system has spent more money than has been taken in in revenue.

"Everything we touch costs more money," Henningsen said. "We can't even continue the type of programs we have right now without the increase."

He said the tax hike should bring in approximately $211,000 per year in extra revenue if it is approved by the voters in the district.

"There is only one way we can cut $200,000 out of our program, and that's by cutting people," Henningsen said.

The tax increase will be used to combat inflation, provide free textbooks to high school students and to maintain and improve the overall program, Henningsen said.

He said Smith-Cotton High

School was offering 66 credits three years ago, but today is offering 114, including nine vocational areas of training. "We can't maintain the program we have right now without more money," Henningsen said.

Inspection by bike

In an effort to conserve gasoline, Cincinnati firefighter Joe Roedig is now pedaling a bicycle with an equipment basket as he makes a check of fire hydrants in his district. The men in Joe's company chipped in to buy the bike as an experiment. The suggestion is to be acted on in the city council. Formerly, firemen used autos for this work. (UPI)

Petition 'final exam' for legal students

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like those who beef about the weather, many gripe about TV commercials interrupting their shows without trying to do something about it. Not so in the case of John Banzhaf's law class.

Three of his students, all enrolled in his course on legal activism, are petitioning the Federal Communications Commission to limit TV commercial time to eight minutes per hour.

That's 10 minutes fewer than the FCC — which says it has no firm time restrictions for TV commercials — generally allows before it starts giving station licenses the regulatory evil eye.

Banzhaf, 33, a professor at George Washington University, is a man to be reckoned with, as any network official can tell you.

He's the man who, in 1967, filed an FCC petition about TV cigarette ads. It eventually led to a 1970 congressional ban on such ads.

Banzhaf, acting only as an advisor on the latest petition, says it's one of several "final exam" projects.

His students' FCC petition would limit commercial breaks, except in certain cases, to the half-hour and hour, to let viewers enjoy their shows without an advertising blast every 10 or 15 minutes.

It also asks that all advertising be banned from children's weekend program time — 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

The National Association of Broadcasters' TV code currently limits to 12 minutes the advertising and other "non-program" material aired during each hour of weekend children's program time.

It also restricts "non-program material," save for public service spots and promotions for the show being viewed, to 9½ minutes per hour in prime evening time for network-affiliated stations.

There also can't be — in the main body of most programs — any more than two "program interruptions" per half-hour program or four per 60-minute show. Five interruptions are allowed in the case of hour-long variety shows.

Although the NAB claims 531 TV stations as members, only the TV networks and 407 stations subscribe to its TV code, leaving the nation's 300 other commercial TV stations free to do their own advertising thing.

Banzhaf said the petition cites the NAB code's limits on program interruptions and non-program material as the "recognition of a major group that this is a reasonable goal and it should be regulated."

The professor was asked if he thought his students had much of a chance to win their case.

"Quite frankly," he said, "I think it depends in large part on the amount of public support it gets and the amount of public concern that's aroused out of it."

Couple ready to move

SEATTLE (AP) — Faced with a home whose landscape is crumbling around them, the Sandborgs are prepared to number every piece, move and reassemble them.

The bottom literally started falling out from under them two years ago, even before they moved into a home they built themselves in the Picnic Point area north of Seattle. The house is on a steep hill with what real estate agents would praise as a Puget Sound vista.

First the yard began sinking, 20 feet in some places. But when chunks of it began sweeping down the hillside this week, the Sandborgs began getting ready.

"It just started going down," Sandborg said. "Every few minutes we would listen to the rumblings and crumbling."

"We've got evacuation plans. If we can save the house, we're going to number each board, take everything apart and store it until we can rebuild in another lot when we spiritually feel up to it."

The Sandborgs moved into the house in January 1973. They had built the house over three years from materials he culled from dozens of sources — doors from a shipwreck on the beach, rafters hewn from trees on the property, slate from a house that had burned down.

"We had never laid a brick before," Sandborg said. "This floor would cost us $1,000 if we bought it. It cost us $10 for the mortar and 80 hours of labor."

"This is our dream world. We've always called it the most beautiful place in the world."

Sandborg blames Burlington Northern Railroad for at least part of his problem. Below the Sandborgs, between the house and the beach, is the railroad right-of-way. He contends that if the railroad had shored up the bottom, his backyard still would be at the top.

The shoreline area has a long history of slide problems. Burlington Northern officials say stabilizing the bank would cost a fortune, and if they did it for one, they'd have to do it for all.

"There isn't much that we can do," said Charles Intlekofer, the railroad's director of engineering. "People shouldn't construct in there unless they are willing to pay the price of landslides."

The fruit-eating bats of Africa, Asia and the Pacific islands have excellent eyesight that enables them to spot their food amidst thick foliage.

Milk is no longer produced the way it used to be

EDITOR'S NOTE — Because of her fame, Skagvale Graceful Hattie, the world's most productive dairy cow, does not toil in a sweatshop. But the bovine sisterhood is fast being herded into milking factories that operate day and night. Cows that don't produce are turned into hamburger.

By PAUL O'NEILL.
SEDRO WOOLLEY, Wash. (AP) — If you've wondered why cowbells and milk cans have been relegated to roadside antique stores — or think lowing kine still wend their homeward way from distant leas — you don't know much about that carton of milk in your refrigerator.

Milk is now a factory product. The cows which manufacture it are parked, increasingly, in paved lots, are monitored by computers, fed by automated devices, and — thanks to artificial insemination — are remodeled generation by generation to increase their yield and their fitness for work on the assembly line.

Meet Skagvale Graceful Hattie, the most productive dairy cow of all time. Hattie not only broke a 21-year-old world record by giving 44,019 pounds (or 20,047 quarts) of milk in one year (1972), but revealed herself as the very epitome of that genetic tinkering by which the bovine sisterhood is presently being merged with U.S. industry.

Not that so rare a creature is, herself, required to toil under factory conditions: Hattie's owners, the Tenneson brothers, provide her with an aluminum-sided barn of her own, another high-toned Holstein named Craig Petro Telstar as a kind of lady-in-waiting, heaps of fresh wood shavings upon which to rest and sleep and constant access to a small, individual pasture which looks out upon the green Skagit Valley and the foothills of the Cascade Mountains.

All Holsteins are large but Hattie — a big-boned, broad-faced black beast with four white stockings and a white-splashed rump — is ponderous. She stands five-feet-one at the shoulder and weighs — when with calf — one ton.

Hattie is now 10 years old and her udder is no longer chic. She looks, in fact — to indulge in well-worn dairy humor — "as though you'd have to jack her up to put a milking machine on her." She is still making history for all that, more than tripling the average U.S. cow's yield for a third year in a Skagvale Graceful Hattie, a 10-year-old Holstein-Friesian of Sedro Woolley, Wash., is the most productive dairy cow of all time. She broke a 21-year-old record by giving 20,047 quarts of milk last year. And she's still making history by more than tripling the average U.S. cow's yield for a third year in a row.

lulose fiber down to her four stomachs (she consumes more than 60 pounds of alfalfa hay and up to 45 pounds of grain every 24 hours) that to get the job of rumination done she has to keep regurgitating and chewing away even when lying down.

Hattie's own personal milking machine is affixed to her at precise twelve-hour intervals (at 6:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m.), and it puffs and clicks away for a full eight minutes, double average milking time, extracting her flood of fluid product. When the cups are removed, Hattie lurches obediently through the gate of her stall, goes back to her feed rack and starts grinding down more hay. Hattie is known as a "hard worker."

It is a trait she shares, in varying degrees, with the rest of the bovine sisterhood. Grazing, though it still goes on, is a vanishing practice. More and more cows are kept in paved corrals which can be cleaned by a tractor blade, are nourished at feed racks which can be filled by a mobile hay and silage dispenser and are sheltered in adjacent open sheds equipped with rubber mats for resting and sometimes with slatted floors to conduct waste into an underground flushing system.

They are paraded to a central milking parlor every 12 hours to take part in what might be described as community lactation: to be connected in groups by way of multiple milking machines to a maze of sterile, vacuum-actuated, stainless steel plumbing and thence to one of the refrigerated storage tanks which every dairyman must install for a Grade A rating.

The cow who is too nervous, excitable, shy or contrary to enter unhesitatingly into such a routine gets a quick trip to the slaughterhouse. So does the cow who cannot be completely milked in four or five minutes. But factory cows do not live long, anyhow. All are converted to hamburger as soon as their milk production begins to fall off — usually by the time they are six years old.

Insistence on high productivity is an old American farm tradition. Black and white Holstein-Friesians like Hattie were imported from the Netherlands in the first place because they gave more milk than Jerseys, Brown Swiss, Guernseys and Ayrshires, and U.S. dairymen have spent 100 years — in which the breed has come to comprise 85 per cent of the national dairy herd — making improvements on the European original. It took 27 million cows to satisfy the country's need for milk in 1947; it takes only 12.2 million of the new models to do the job today.

An all-time bovine superstar like Skagvale Graceful Hattie stands at the epicenter of the dairy business.

It takes time, measured in decades, and money measured in six figures to succeed in the tricky and expensive business of producing championship dairy animals. Hattie's background, measured on these scales, is as astonishing as her performance.

The Tenneson brothers — John, 37, Glen, 36, and Dale, 31 — needed only 20 years to create her, starting with nothing but a mortgage on the family farm in 1953. In 10 more years they have established an international reputation as breeders of an unusual Holstein line. They have done so, moreover, in a day of increasingly scientific methods, by native shrewdness, a stubborn faith in inbreeding and a kind of catch-as-catch-can instinct for discerning greatness in animals others disregard.

Hattie astonished them when she began milking in January, 1965; she gave 70 pounds a day, a tremendous performance for a young animal. She kept surprising them.

There is no breeder of dairy cattle anywhere in the world who is not now aware of the new superstar; it is the American Holstein rather than the Dutch original which the Japanese, the Yugoslavs, the Israelis and even Holland's European neighbors now seek in upgrading their herds.

Author says cliché is crutch

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — If people would stop taking the easy way out with clichés and put some thought into saying what they really mean they would improve their relationships with family, friends and business associates, believes Gerard Nierenberg.
He calls these clichés that mask thoughts and emotions "meta-talk," a word he and Henry Calero coined and about which they have written a book, "Meta-Talk: Guide to Hidden Meanings in Conversation." The two were co-authors of a previous book, "How to Read a Person Like a Book," on how to interpret nonverbal language of gestures.
"In our first book we tried to get people to look and really see. Now we want them to listen and really hear," explains Nierenberg, whose own talking style is rapid-fire.

"Instead of using the energy to deal conversationally with a specific situation and a specific person at a specific time we all use verbal crutches — clichés, truisms, pat answers. If you're using meta-talk you're selling yourself and your relationships short."

Every conversation is on three different levels, he notes — what we're saying, what we think we're saying and what the listener thinks we're saying.
For instance, when a person uses the phrase, "In my humble opinion," Nierenberg points out, what he's really saying is "I think I'm quite superior but I don't want you to think that I think it."

Variants on this false humility theme, the author adds, are "Far be it from me to say," "If you ask my opinion," "I'm only a woman," "I do the best I can."
"If a salesman says 'I'd like to be perfectly frank' his customer thinks 'How's he trying to take me over this time?' If you're qualifying all the time, telling people how honest you are, it causes them to think the reverse," Nierenberg adds.
"In a conversation in which we don't feel secure, we are constantly trying to get feedback," he says. "By using the expression 'you know' frequently we are looking for agreement, the nodding of the head, before going further."

He suggests we should stop being frightened that if a person sees us with all our frailties and all our faults he is not going to like us. "As long as we can recognize the humanness in one another we can get together," he says.

The first commercial telephone exchange opened in January 1878 in New Haven, Conn., serving 21 customers.

Trim food budget with bread sticks

By AILEEN CLAIRE

Everyone is looking for ways to trim the food budget and be more economical when preparing meals and snacks. Many stores still lower their prices on bread after a certain date and this proves a saving as it did in Mother's day. Use day-old bread or bread that may be going stale at home to make Gulliver's Bread Sticks. These go well with soups and salads. They can be frozen if you want to make them in quantity for a party. Slide bread sticks under the broiler to thaw and brown.

GULLIVER'S BREAD STICKS
1 loaf unsliced day-old enriched sandwich bread
1 1/4 cups butter
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon basil

1 tablespoon chopped chives
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder (optional)

Cut unsliced loaf in half crosswise. Cut each half lengthwise into quarters. Turn on side and cut again into quarters, making 16 long sticks from each half. Arrange sticks on two 15 1/2 x 10 1/2-inch jelly roll pans or baking sheets and let stand, uncovered, about 1 hour. Melt butter with all remaining ingredients. Brush herb-butter on all sides of bread sticks. Bake in preheated 375-degree oven 20 minutes, turning once, for chewy bread sticks OR 35 minutes, turning once, for extra-crisp bread sticks. Makes 32 sticks.

Polly's pointers

How about listing total costs in ad?

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with those ads in papers, catalogues and magazines that put the price up in the ad and then way down below lists the cost of shipping and handling. I wish they would add these to the price quoted so one would know what the article was really going to cost. These extras may not be noted until one has the check made out. — ESTHER.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — How does one prevent a shower curtain from moving inward while the shower is being used?

We recently purchased a 9x12 indoor-outdoor carpet and were dismayed to discover wrinkles where it had been folded. I hope someone has a suggestion to solve this problem. — MRS. L.W.

DEAR POLLY — and Mrs. H.W. — I was in the glass business for years and know of no practical way to clean between the two panes of glass. What has happened is that the seal is applied at the factory to keep out air and give the window its insulating quality. It has been broken at some point allowing air and moisture to enter thus giving the glass a cloudy appearance. The average homeowner cannot repair such a leak. Sending the unit back to the factory for resealing would probably be more costly than buying a new one. At any rate I feel sure the unit must be replaced since it has lost its insulating quality. Mrs. H.W. should check with the builder or manufacturer of the unit. It usually is guaranteed by the manufacturer for a varying number of years. — MELVIN.

DEAR POLLY — As we are all trying to conserve energy resources I think I have a good way to save electricity. When washing a small load of lingerie or permanent press clothes and there is not enough for a dryer load I put a bed pillow in the dryer with the small load. This freshens my pillows and does not waste electricity drying just a few things. I use different pillows for this and that way they all stay fresh and clean smelling. — BONNIE.

DEAR POLLY — When a group of friends want to sit at the same table at a club or church dinner or get-together of any sort I use pre-planned "reservation" cards. On 3x5 recipe cards I write in large black letters, "Reserved," paste a fancy sticker in the upper left hand corner and write my name at the bottom. Such cards are placed on the table where the group is to sit. This avoids leaning chairs against the table (a dangerous habit) or leaving purses on empty seats. I carry many such cards in my purse and have them on hand for book reviews, lectures, pot luck dinners, etc. — BLANCHE.

DEAR POLLY — I recently moved from one city to another and was very concerned about how to handle my new pleated top draperies. I solved the problem by folding each panel like a closed accordion and then tying a string around each end and around the middle to hold them. The panels were then folded and put in a large carton. On arrival at my new home I found my drapes were as wrinkle free as when I took them down. — GWEN.

DEAR GIRLS — There would be even less chance of wrinkles if a plastic cleaners bag was put inside the folds of the draperies. I pack my clothes this way any time I am going on a trip and seldom does anything need pressing. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — During the present fuel crisis I suggest that homemakers who are at home most of the time should wear, on cold days, a pair of summer polyester slacks of a similar color under winter slacks and a short sleeved top under a long sleeved winter one. This keeps one much warmer and makes it possible to get by with less fuel. — MELBA.

Economy rebound predicted

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The former chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers says he looks for a slight rebound in the economy the second half of this year.

"I predict an inflation rate of maybe 6 per cent or lower by year's end, and in that rozier picture I include a tapering off of food prices," Dr. Walter W. Heller told newsmen Monday.

Heller said the administration's plan to drop all but a few wage and price controls by April 30 would undoubtedly have a "pop-up" effect on prices and that the main victims would be the middle and lower income groups.

"I'm concerned here and now with the family of four that spends between 40 and 50 per cent of its income on food," Heller said.

Heller said he would favor an extra $100 income tax exemption for lower income families and would also like to see wage earners making less than $3,400 a year exempted from Social Security taxes.

Commenting on the lifting of the Arab oil embargo, Heller said, "The end to the embargo in itself may increase our Gross National Happiness but not the Gross National Product."

Missouri milk price probe is supported

By BOB FICK
Associated Press Writer
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Amidst charges of alleged price fixing, collusion, mismanagement of funds and excessive profits, the House Agriculture Committee heard unanimous support Monday night for a resolution aimed at probing the entire structure of milk prices in Missouri.

During a 4½ hour hearing, representatives from all areas of the dairy industry pledged their full support to the proposed investigation, prompted by skyrocketing milk prices especially in the southwestern part of the state and increasing anger from dairy farmers who claim to be continually losing money.

But despite the support, the committee was unable to take action because it lacked the necessary quorum of 11 members by the time the last witness completed his testimony early this morning.

Rep. D. R. Osbourn, D-Monroe City, committee chairman, said the committee will consider the measure in executive session within the next week and determine whether to report it favorably to the House.

If approved by both houses of the legislature, the resolution would establish a 10-man House-Senate joint interim committee to conduct a comprehensive study of milk pricing practices and procedures in the state. The joint committee would have subpoena power and would conduct its probe throughout the rest of the year, reporting its findings to the new General Assembly next year.

Among those backing the proposed investigation were the state Department of Agriculture, the National Farm Organization and the Farm Bureau.

"We're opposed to government controls, but there are times when some one has to set some ground rules," said Dick Johnson, president of the Farm Bureau.

The controversy over milk prices centers around the apparent discrepancy between the amount paid to farmers, which according to testimony averaged around 74 cents a gallon last month, and the price charged consumers, up to $1.78 per gallon last week in Springfield.

"Southern Missouri dairy farms get less for their milk than most of the country," charged Rep. Morris G. Westfall, R-Halfway, who represents two of the state's five largest dairy producing counties. Westfall claimed such a pricing system has existed for at least the last 10 years.

On questioning by committee Vice Chairman William E. Blackwell, D-Hermann, several witnesses admitted they had heard rumors of milk handlers offering supermarkets incentives ranging from interest-free loans to unrestricted advertising budgets in an effort to gain their accounts.

Evans Ippock, who claimed to represent some 2,000 Missouri dairy farmers as chairman of the Dairy Improvement Committee, said there was a need for an investigation beginning with the dairy cooperatives that buy the farmers' milk all the way through the dairy chain to the retail stores where the consumer purchases milk.

Convention Hall topic discussed

The Environmental Quality Commission Tuesday night decided to address a letter to the chairman of the public buildings and other City Council members regarding improvements on Convention Hall in Liberty Park.

The board expressed concern over changes made in renovating the front of Convention Hall. According to the board, this section of the building is not consistent with its overall architectural style.

Board member Mrs. Judy Berenyi said the board wishes to express a "general concern for the architectural heritage in Sedalia." No other action on the subject was taken.

In other business, the board discussed possible sites in Sedalia for an air-pollution monitoring system. Chairman Bob Solomon said the Air Conservation Commission asked them to study the possible sites in Sedalia. No decisions, however, were made by the commission.

The commission also announced that its tree planting project, which started last fall, is completed.

Solomon said 225 trees were planted in Sedalia and that residents still are requesting trees.

U.S., Europeans will 'work out differences'

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — President Nixon says he believes the United States and its European allies will "work out the differences that we have in the economic and political fields."

Nixon's tone at his Tuesday night news conference was more conciliatory than his warning last Friday that transatlantic cooperation "is not a one-way street."

The President said he would continue to oppose unilateral U.S. troop cutbacks in Europe, which he had posed as a possible threat during his Friday appearance in Chicago.

Speaking at a convention of the National Association of Broadcasters, Nixon also made an indirect appeal for Soviet help in settling tensions in the Middle East.

"There cannot be permanent peace in the Middle East if the Soviet Union is against it," the President said.

Earlier Tuesday, it was announced in Washington that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will reopen his drive for a military disengagement between Israel and Syria March 29 in Washington.

The disengagement talks are to resume with Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan after Kissinger returns from a trip to Moscow to discuss strategic arms limitation negotiations.

The American secretary plans to deal with the Syrians separately later in trying to bridge the "very wide gap" that U.S. officials say divides the October war foes on how much captured territory Israel should yield in the Golan Heights.

At the news conference, Nixon said the United States will remain Israel's friend but that he believes "it is much better to have the United States as a friend of Israel's neighbors and thereby able to influence and perhaps restrain their policies."

Nixon said he is optimistic the Arab oil embargo will not be renewed, even though the Arabs said they would review June 1 their decision to lift the embargo.

On the U.S.-European cooperation issue, Nixon said he was happy with the initial response of French officials to his criticism of lack of progress in adopting a common set of economic and political principles with the United States.

The President last week ruled out going to any summit meeting with the Europeans unless there is agreement on new declarations of cooperation.

The President conceded at the Tuesday news conference that, "in the political and economic field, in the deals between the nine, the European Community and the United States, those discussions haven't gone well."

"They have not gone well due to the fact that the nine at times haven't consulted with us, we think, fully or in time, and second, in some areas, have actually taken a position which is hostile to the United States."

But Nixon asserted: "I believe that we are going to work out the differences that we have in the economic and political fields."

The President warned against "a new sense of isolationism" in America, which he said has led many to advocate bringing military forces home from Europe.

Also Tuesday, the United States and West Germany reached an agreement whereby the Germans will offset the cost of stationing the 200,000 American troops on German soil.

Nixon reiterates stand on White House tapes

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's words were different, but his message to the House Judiciary Committee was the same: no more White House files until the panel defines an impeachable offense.

During a televised question-and-answer session Tuesday night before the National Association of Broadcasters convention in Houston, the President said:

"It is the Constitution that defines what the House should have access to and the limits of its investigation. Now, I'm suggesting that the House follow the Constitution. If they do, I will."

What prompted that statement was a question in which the President was asked if he weren't seeking to define the limits of the impeachment inquiry by saying what he would and would not give the House committee.

Nixon replied that the Constitution defines grounds for impeachment as "treason, bribery and other high crimes and misdemeanors."

He then seemed to suggest that the House committee should limit its requests to material that would bear on what are found to be "high crimes and misdemeanors."

But a problem is that the House committee and the President disagree on the definition of impeachable offenses.

At a news conference on Feb. 25, the President said, "The Constitution is very precise in defining what is an impeachable offense. . . . A criminal offense on the part of the president is the requirement for impeachment."

The House Judiciary Committee hasn't made any final determination of what it will regard as an impeachable offense.

But a staff memorandum given members of the committee just four days before President Nixon gave his definition said that, "in drawing articles of impeachment, the House has placed little emphasis on criminal conduct."

"Much more common are allegations that the officer has violated his duties or his oath or seriously undermined public confidence in his ability to perform his official functions."

Members of the House panel didn't necessarily agree with the staff study.

Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., the ranking Republican, said the study "speaks to the committee, it does not speak for the committee."

The President has portrayed the House committee as making broad requests for material in an attempt to find something that would fit an unspecified definition of an impeachable offense.

For example, last Friday before a group of business executives in Chicago, Nixon said some people would have him give the committee "a fishing license" to go through presidential files "in order to find out whether or not there is a possibility that some action had been taken which might be and might result in an impeachable offense."

Arbitration plan is rejected

The dispute over the stone facia work being done at the Junior High School took a new turn Tuesday night when the Sedalia Board of Education rejected a counter-proposal concerning arbitration of the difference in cost of the original specifications and the work now being performed.

The board rejected a letter from the attorney for the Don "L" Bron Construction Co. calling for arbitration on whether the board or the contractor is entitled to any rebate on the cost between the facia stone project at the school as originally specified and the project as it is actually being completed.

In a meeting March 7, the board passed a resolution offering to put to arbitration the amount, if any, to be allowed to the board on the different type of construction being used on the facia.

A copy of that resolution was then forwarded to J. H. Birmingham Jr., Kansas City, Bron's lawyer.

Birmingham replied in a letter this week that he would agree to submit to arbitration the question of the difference in cost as well as to whom the difference should be paid, either the board or the contractor.

The board unanimously rejected Birmingham's proposal and adopted a resolution telling Birmingham he must accept the resolution as adopted by the school board.

The project, estimated to cost $34,125, specified application of wire mesh with masonry-shot nails and a cement aggregate finish. At a special meeting Feb. 4, the board rejected the stone facia work after learning that the stone being applied by the sub-contractor, the Dugger Corporation, Springfield, was only one-half inch thick instead of the specified three-fourths inch thickness.

However, Don Buller, architect, told the board that in his estimation the quality of work being performed was as good as the original specifications and the board voted to accept the work.

The board is withholding payment to the contractor for the stone facia work pending a settlement of the current dispute over who could get any rebate.

In its only other action during the open portion of the meeting, the board voted to allow the Salvation Army to use five of the grade schools to conduct non-denominational religious meetings for five afternoons April 22-26.

Major Marjorie Weber, commanding officer of the local Salvation Army office, made the request.

In a letter to the board, Major Weber said there will be five cadets from the Army's training program in Sedalia that week, and they would like to conduct the meetings for the elementary school age children in five elementary schools immediately after school.

After discussing those two items, the board went into executive session to discuss the issuance of contracts to teachers for the 1974-75 school year.

Appropriations bill sent to House floor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A joint House-Senate committee Tuesday night adopted and sent to the floor of the House a conference proposal for a $29 million emergency appropriations bill that would transfer the Independence Residence Center of Central Missouri State University to the University of Missouri.

The production of three days of bargaining, the bill would also grant MU $2 million for construction of a new administration building at its St. Louis campus.

In the final version, the House retreated from some detail in line item budgeting, but no trend for future money bills was evident.

Senators agreed to the center transfer, to cost about $40,000 through June, after House conferees agreed to a Senate clause granting about $450,000 to Northwest Missouri State University.

The Maryville school president has said the emergency funds would enable the school to get out of a deficit caused by an enrollment drop crisis.

The $29 million proposal now must be passed by both houses. It funds state agency extra money needs until June when regular appropriations should go into effect.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond has supported transfers of the Independence center.

However, several Independence residents and state senators opposed transfer because they said MU does not want the center and would abandon it in the future.

But late Tuesday night appropriations Chairman James Russell and Norman Merrell struck the bargain to transfer the center to MU if Northwest received its emergency request.

The money bill also granted Lincoln University about $151,000 for a heating plant revamp.

The emergency bill also contained $65,120 for the Ellis Fischel State Cancer Hospital in Columbia for drugs and supplies. The hospital had requested about $72,000.

The panel approved $273,000 for the Mount Vernon State Chest Hospital, which had requested $454,000 to end a rural-urban pay difference.

The state Federal Soldiers Home in St. James received an $86,000 grant to allow a new wing to be opened. The home had first requested only $70,000.

The bill also granted about $21,000 to the state Fuel Board for more employees.

During discussion, Merrell, Russell and other conferees criticized state Purchasing Agent Herb Damron, for not sending agencies needed supplies at a good price.

Merrell said he could purchase propane for his farm more cheaply than the state could under volume contracts.

Russell said the Soldiers Home must buy bread under contract at a cost higher than those in grocery stores.

Damron will leave state office soon.

Earlier, House members agreed to change language that would require the state Fiscal Affairs Committee to approve the use of any money gained by an agency due to job vacancies.

Money now received from vacancies would return to the state.

Senate conferees agreed to House wording that details how many employees various divisions of the state prisons system should be granted.

The approved prison request of about $925,000 would bring prison guards' pay up to levels paid urban corrections officials.

However, that agreement, like all others reached Tuesday could be undone in floor action or in an improbable later conference committee on the bill.

Other approved emergency requests: Department of Revenue $188,000; state agencies for office rents and costs of moving offices, $598,000; Board of Training Schools, $317,000; mental illness program $289,000, including about $137,000 for the Fulton State Hospital; mental retardation programs, $353,000.

Executive addresses local club

An address by Forest Wallace, executive secretary of the Association of Missouri Industries, highlighted the Monday meeting of the Sedalia Rotary Club at the Ramada Inn.

Wallace, who is also affiliated with radio station WHB in Kansas City, explained that the organization was founded in 1921 to represent business interests at the state legislative level.

Representatives of lobbying groups, such as the AMI, Wallace explained, must be responsible and possess unquestionable integrity because of their dealings with legislators. Information on legislative action affecting member industries, Wallace said, can be obtained almost instantaneously by an AMI lobbyist.

The following guests were introduced at the meeting: Mark Thomas, Clinton; Earl Uhler Jr., Warrensburg; and Paul Burton, Marshall.

Students guests attending the meeting were Jim McMullin, Sacred Heart High School, and Greg Stover and Fred Washington, both of Smith-Cotton High School.

It was voted to donate $100 to Mrs. Eunice Opfer who, along with her five children, was seriously injured in a two-car accident Friday night.

Presiding at the meeting was club president Bob Phillips. The invocation was offered by Tom Hall, with the group singing led by Jim Edwards, accompanied on the piano by Firmin Boul.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amtrak says mounting fuel and labor costs as well as inflation are forcing it to raise fares nationwide by 5 per cent.

Amtrak, the National Rail Passenger Corp., announced Tuesday that the fare hike would go into effect April 16.

The rate boost is intended to produce about $12 million in additional revenue, the corporation said.

Committee split surfaces on impeachment proceedings

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House request to let President Nixon's lawyer take part in House Judiciary Committee impeachment proceedings is cracking the committee's bipartisan approach.

Republican members generally support the request of White House lawyer James D. St. Clair. The Democrats view it as an attempt to turn the impeachment investigation into a normal court proceeding.

Production resumes at Monsanto plant

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Complete production resumed Tuesday night at the Monsanto Co.'s John F. Queeny plant here after a labor dispute had closed the facility for nearly two days.

An unauthorized walkout, sparked by a controversy over a new job classification, began Monday when 300 of the plant's 1,000 workers struck the facility.

The employees are represented by Local 16 of the International Chemical Workers Union. A union meeting was scheduled for Wednesday to discuss an agreement reached during talks between both sides in the dispute.

The split, which could have a far-reaching effect on the committee's final recommendation, surfaced Tuesday at separate party caucuses of committee members.

No final decisions were reached at either meeting, but party positions clearly appeared in the making on the legal point.

St. Clair has sent two letters to John Doar, the committee's special counsel for impeachment, asking for the right to cross-examine witnesses, present evidence and otherwise participate in the investigation as counsel for the President.

Such actions by defense counsel are normal in ordinary court proceedings, which are conducted on an adversary basis. But Doar, chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., and most Democratic members insist impeachment cannot be equated with normal judicial practices.

"There is no other side in this matter," Doar told the committee a few weeks ago when asked what rights St. Clair would have in the proceedings as defense counsel.

The committee investigation is to determine whether grounds exist for impeaching Nixon. If impeachment is voted by the House, Nixon would be tried by the Senate where he would have right to counsel.

Democrats emerging from their meeting Tuesday expressed strong support for Doar's position. "This is not an adversary proceeding," said Rodino.

But the Republicans, on leaving their meeting, said there are precedents for permitting the subjects of impeachment to be represented either in person or by counsel at proceedings of impeachment panels.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

To efficiently meet growing oil demands, maximum tanker size has reached almost 500,000 deadweight tons and there were 25 super-tankers of more than 275,000 tons as of May 1, 1973. The World Almanac notes. There are only three U.S. ports able to handle tankers of more than 100,000 tons and none can accommodate over 200,000 tons. Deadweight tonnage is the weight (long tons) of cargo, fuel, etc., which a vessel is designed to carry safely.

'Presidency' not above the President

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON (NEA) — One of President Nixon's strangest exercises in the entire Watergate period is his persistent habit of seeming to defend his office rather than himself.

Blossat

This stance reached a new extreme in his most recent press conference, when Mr. Nixon said:

"...it is vitally important in this nation that the presidency of the United States not be hostage to what happens to the

Again and again, he has spoken of the need to protect and preserve "the presidency" in both the present and the future. He makes it sound as if his individual fate as President were almost a secondary matter.

popularity of a President at one time or another.

He was responding to a question whether he would reconsider his determination not to resign if it became increasingly apparent that the Republican party might suffer disastrous defeat in the 1974 elections.

Carried to this limit, there is something surrealistic about the President's argument.

Of course a certain surface air of nobility of purpose may surround his suggestion that any president should plow ahead toward his objectives without regard to the ups and downs of his status in the opinion polls.

But in fact neither Richard Nixon nor any other president can ignore these gauges on his popularity. They are obviously a measure of how his performance in office is regarded, though naturally not the sole measure. And he cannot act in isolation from the effects of that judgment, much as he might wish to.

Consider the case of President Harry Truman, whose 23 per cent popularity rating in 1972 is celebrated as the all-time low since polls began. Would anyone like to argue that he was not handicapped in performance by that fact?

The setting was the Korean war. It was the consensus in the United Nations military command that the slowly advancing U.N. (largely U.S.) troops could make a truce most effective if they could establish a demarcation line at North Korea's narrow waist a good deal north of the now-existing line. But to achieve that goal meant more troops, perhaps a daring sea maneuver, more materiel, more money and maybe more taxes. The decision: "Politically unsalable."

Had that defensible Korean "waist" been reached, we might not have had to keep 50,000 American troops on truce line duty for two decades, nor would the South

Koreans have had to maintain on line a force nearly 10 times as great.

The fact is that the presidency is always, in key ways, "hostage" to the popularity of a particular president at a particular time. Far from performing in insulation from population judgments, a president's performance is deeply affected by those gauges.

It is so with Mr. Nixon, even as he bespeaks his view that he should not, in the interests of the "office," allow himself to be made captive.

In the whole critical area of the economy and the attendant energy crisis, neither the President nor his high agents can perform with confidence and effectiveness because, aside from the matter of competence, Richard Nixon is neither trusted nor respected by a majority of Americans.

Popularity ratings are life sustenance to a president. This one knows it. To say otherwise is to utter deceptive nonsense.

Jamaica is getting bum deal

WASHINGTON — A few weeks ago I wrote a column about the economic calamity which seems to be the destiny of weak developing nations now that worldwide inflation and an energy crisis have been heaped on top of a traditionally unjust trade system.

Rowan

Beautiful but poor little Jamaica is a glaring example of a country that might be paradise but for the fact she gets pennies for what she sells and pays dollars for what she has to buy.

Jamaica is the second biggest producer of bauxite in the world, after Australia. Much of the aluminum you see in your kitchen or as the sidings of houses originated in Jamaica ore.

Jamaica earns some $25 million a year from this ore, a sum that is more than trifling in terms of the country's total budget. But Jamaicans of every political persuasion will tell you the big multinational firms which haul the ore out are reaping far greater profits.

Alpart Ltd., (a partnership formed by Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp., Reynolds Metals Co. and Anaconda Company) began producing alumina (a midstep between bauxite ore and aluminum) over three years ago. Because of a bit of shrewd bookkeeping, the Jamaicans say, Alpart has paid no taxes to Jamaica.

It seems that no "profit" occurs until the alumina gets to the United States and is transformed into ingots or sheet aluminum.

Jamaicans also say that Reynolds Aluminum provides jobs to 500 Jamaicans who extract bauxite ore, but that this same ore supports 30,000 workers in the States.

With one Jamaican out of every five jobless and many others underemployed, small wonder the Jamaicans are asking why more of the aluminum-making processes cannot take place in Jamaica.

There never has been a time when this was not a serious issue in Jamaica. But today it has become a matter of national survival.

With no local sources of energy, Jamaica has been spending about $50 million a year for oil, mostly from Venezuela. With the energy crisis sending oil prices soaring, Jamaica's oil bill is now at least $120 million a year.

The increase in oil costs alone has been enough to wipe out Jamaica's foreign exchange reserves, which now stand at about $74 million, or just enough to finance one more month of essential imports.

The Jamaican government has imposed a stringent austerity program on the people, but that will not meet the crisis. So Jamaica's prime minister and his top aides have been carrying a solemn story to Great Britain, to Prime Minister Trudeau in Canada, to Henry Kissinger in Washington.

"We do not want this to become a matter of political hostility," they are saying, "but Jamaica's very survival depends on our getting a fairer price for our bauxite, our sugar, our other raw materials — something that matches the astonishingly high prices of the things we have to buy."

Five years ago Jamaica could sell 60 tons of sugar to Britain and get enough money to buy a tractor. Today it takes 90 tons of sugar to bring that tractor to Jamaica.

What is worse is that Jamaican labor costs, fertilizer costs, etc., have pushed the production cost for a ton of sugar to about $165. That is some $30 more than what Britain is paying under a contract signed a few years ago.

Or take oil. Just 14 months ago a ton of Jamaican sugar brought enough foreign exchange to buy 20 barrels of oil. A ton of sugar now brings five barrels of oil.

The Jamaicans are in some tough talks about bauxite and alumina prices with huge U.S. corporations which are not known to let sentimentality get in the way of turning another buck. Theoretically the U.S. government is not involved. But it is.

That aluminum we extract from Jamaican bauxite is of strategic importance to the United States. Having Jamaica remain a friendly democracy is of deep importance to the United States.

If the rich countries are ever going to show a willingness to stop cheating the developing countries, in the interest of a just and peaceful world order, the time is now.

Jamaica would be as good a place as any for Uncle Sam to haul up the flag of economic decency.

c. 1974, Field Enterprises Inc.

The embargo ends

The U.S. fuel picture has considerably brightened now that the Arabs have lifted the oil embargo.

Shipments from the Mideast should begin arriving again in about five or six weeks, officials say. The oil will certainly ease the tight gasoline situation that confronts some parts of the country.

One immediate result is that gasoline rationing will not be necessary, federal energy officials say. And more gas supplies should brighten the picture as far as one traditional American institution is concerned—the summer vacation.

Resumption of the Arab oil flow will not end all of the nation's energy problems, however. Important as it is, Mideast oil supplies only between 10 and 14 per cent of the U.S. requirement.

Even this amount is too much to depend upon the mercurial Mideast to supply. The U.S. goal should continue to be self-sufficiency, as far into the future as this may be.

The Arab oil-producing states reaffirmed their political view of the petroleum "weapon" by announcing that the decision to lift the embargo will be reviewed in two months. Presumably the U.S. position toward Israel and the Arab nations will be the test as to whether the oil continues to flow to America.

Keep drunks off the road

The need for a tougher state drunk driving law was illustrated Friday, when a head-on collision on West Broadway left eight persons severely injured, including a mother and her five children.

The driver of the car at fault, James Lees, has five drunk driving convictions, three of them occurring in Sedalia in one year, and now faces a sixth charge. Had three of these been state convictions, he would have been permanently stripped of his driver's license.

Under state law, however, a driving while intoxicated (DWI) conviction in a CITY court gets the driver only six points, where a state conviction means 12 and an automatic one-year revocation. The second state DWI conviction calls for a 5-year revocation, with the prohibition becoming permanent on the third one. This double standard makes no sense.

Attorney General John Danforth's bill, now buried in House committee, would assess a uniform 12-point penalty and automatic one-year revocation for ALL drunk driving convictions. Those who continue to drive after being revoked (as has Lees in the past) would forfeit their cars.

Missouri needs the bill to keep such menaces to the public safety off the roads.

"MY HUSBAND IS PRO-NIXON. HE'S FOR RESIGNATION INSTEAD OF IMPEACHMENT."

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — President Nixon maintains a mysterious "private, personal file" of intimate conversations on dictabelts which he has cached in a top security filing cabinet in the White House basement.

This is the secret testimony of the President's secretary, Rose Mary Woods, given during a two-hour session on Feb. 20 to Senate Watergate lawyers.

The President, she swore, "from time to time, for his own private, personal files does do some tapes. I have been in the Lincoln Sitting Room at times when he will remember something from a conversation and put on a dictabelt."

At that point, apparently realizing she had let a White House cat out of the bag, Miss Woods paused and hastily added, "such as 'Julie said this or that to me.'"

She said "those personal, private dictabelts ... are put in an envelope — maybe we get two or three at a time — they may be three weeks apart."

"We have no idea of what is on them — they are his own personal, private things which are not transcribed. They are put in an envelope, sealed up and the date we received them is put on the envelope."

Pressed during her secret testimony by assistant Watergate counsel Terry Lenzner, Miss Woods said the tapes are "kept in his filing cabinets" in a secure area "on the basement floor in the West Wing" of the White House.

While often biting and even sarcastic, Miss Woods' testimony is full of insights into the White House and the President. At one point, she illustrated poignantly his mania for saving every scrap of Nixoniana — a squirreling away that finally created a tape-and-paper rope which is now hanging him.

"He saves everything," she said, her tone softening. "He saves place cards, menus even. One Halloween, we were at Camp David and he and Mrs. Nixon invited me to dinner ... The steward put a colored mask on each of the three plates — I know Mrs. Nixon put hers in the wastebasket and I did mine," she said.

But Nixon sent his mask to her to be "sealed in an envelope and put away." He also saved "little notes from Julie — from Tricia," all with the same pack rat diligence that preserved the Watergate tapes currently being used to indict his closest associates.

CONGRESSIONAL investigators have traced a curious cash flow through presidential pal Bebe Rebozo's Key Biscayne, Fla., bank in 1970-71.

The trail leads to Switzerland where money can be hidden in numbered bank accounts.

As part of the investigation into President Nixon's tax returns, the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation has checked a number of accounts in Rebozo's bank. It has taken lengthy statements from Rebozo.

Elaborate charts, covering two large desk tops, have been prepared showing how mysterious cash sums were routed through the bank, our committee sources say.

The investigators have not established that Rebozo himself has a secret Swiss bank account. But a committee investigator will fly to Paris and Geneva in an attempt to follow the flow of cash to Switzerland.

We were unable to reach Rebozo for comment. But he has denied to committee investigators that he has been involved in any improper cash transactions.

Both Chairman Russell Long, D-La., and Cochairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., have agreed that the committee should establish only how much more taxes the President owes and should not make any judgments about possible tax fraud.

Any evidence of fraud, they have agreed, should be turned over to the Internal Revenue Service and the House impeachment panel. As we have previously reported, the IRS has already assigned the Nixon tax investigation to the intelligence unit which handles criminal cases. Our sources say the unit finds criminal violations in about 50 per cent of its investigations.

FOOTNOTE: The committee staff members are amazed at the number of petty tax deductions Nixon claimed. Apparently, it was his policy to claim a deduction for even the most doubtful items.

In contrast, the staff advised Gerald Ford, before he became vice president, that he could take a deduction for an item he questioned. Later, the IRS challenged the deduction. "If there is the slightest question about it," staff members recall Ford saying, "I would prefer to pay." He immediately wrote out a check for the amount rather than contest it.

"Yes, as a Democrat I AM planning to capitalize on 'Watergate' as THE big issue in my re-election campaign!"

Officials conclude tight supplies; no rationing

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Gasoline rationing was virtually ruled out for this summer by Monday's announced ending of the Arab oil embargo against the United States. But petroleum supplies may stay tight enough to require continued fuel conservation measures.

Both conclusions have been cited by energy officials as the likely results of an end to the embargo, although the Federal Energy Office declined immediate comment after the actual announcement.

Whether the nuisance of long gasoline-station lines is gone for good, however, depends on just how tight the summer supplies remain.

And that depends on a variety of things: gasoline demand, at the high prices now in effect; actual crude oil import levels; the availability of imported gasoline as the embargo lifts still further in Europe, and policy decisions on the use of existing gasoline inventories and the late-summer shift of refinery production toward other fuels.

John C. Sawhill, deputy administrator of the Federal Energy Office, said last week that an end to the embargo would lift the threat of gasoline rationing, for it would provide some assurance that fuel shortages over the next several months would at least get no worse and probably would improve.

But Sawhill also warned that the nation would have to continue its efforts to conserve energy.

The reason is that U.S. demand for gasoline and other petroleum products has been rising steadily. And the Arab nations appeared unwilling to increase their production levels higher than existed before the embargo, while U.S. domestic production has stagnated.

So there seems to be little prospect that total U.S. petroleum supply can expand much beyond last year's levels.

Any chance for economic growth — at least if it depends on petroleum — will therefore require fuel conservation to provide some growth margin.

The Federal Energy Office has measured fuel shortages against estimates of what demand would be if there were no shortage.

Saudi Arabia's oil minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani said Monday the Arabs would provide the United States with as much oil as it got last September.

That provides one measure of future shortages.

Another measure is the time it takes — about one month — for oil tankers from the Middle East to begin reaching the United States. It may take another two months for oil imports to regain their September levels.

Making such assumptions, it is possible to venture a rough guess at the future. With gasoline production at its maximum, supplies should rise as Arab oil returns to the U.S. market. Shortages may shrink from about 17 per cent to the neighborhood of 5 per cent by July.

These shortages could be further reduced by drawing on U.S. gasoline inventories or by diverting some gasoline from Europe.

Energy chief William E. Simon has often commented that his hardest job would begin when the oil embargo ends. That job, he says, is to convince the nation its oil crisis is not yet over.

Astronaut's father near financial ruin

WYOMING, Mich. (AP) — A promise to his son, one of three astronauts killed in a 1967 training mission, has brought Don Chaffee to the verge of financial ruin.

"Being the father of a national hero is not financially rewarding. Of course, I never thought it would be," Chaffee, 63, said. "But I've practically gone to the end of my line."

Roger Chaffee, 31, Virgil Grissom and Edward H. White II were killed Jan. 27, 1967, when fire raced through their Apollo capsule during a flight test. Ever since, the elder Chaffee has been on the stump promoting the nation's space program.

Chaffee says meeting the pledge to his son has placed him $75,000 in debt.

In 1966, as the Chaffees walked together along the shore at Cocoa Beach, Fla., the astronaut told his father, "If I buy the farm (die), I don't want you to be bitter. Do what you can to help the space program." Chaffee recalled in a recent interview.

"I'll promise you that," I said. But I sort of laughed it off." The former real estate agent says his son's death "was a terrible shock — but I remembered my promise."

As speaking engagements began draining his resources, Chaffee started drawing Social Security payments and tapping his wife's income as a bank employee to finance them.

Appeals for aid to every major foundation and several business firms drew letters of support but no money, he said.

Chaffee said he's considered putting a stop to his campaign but that he believes "there ought to be some way I could keep going. There's money spent on a lot of things more frivolous than this."

THE BENTONS SINGERS OF GOSPEL MUSIC at the CHURCH OF THE OPEN BIBLE Tues., March 21, 7:30 p.m., 705 E. 5th, Sedalia

The Bentons are said to have one of the best blends in Gospel Music. That blend refers not only to their sound, but to their approach to ministry. Joyce worked with drug addicts for two years. Dean worked as a radio DJ in Country and Gospel Music, plus 13 years of pastoral experience. Carole's creativity, and desire to be real brings much to make the blend what it is.

The Bentons use band tracks from their albums as background for their singing. Carole also plays the piano and Joyce plays the bass. The trio began singing regularly in August, 1970. Since that time they have appeared in hundreds of concerts in nearly twenty denominations, fairs, civic clubs, etc. The approach is informal, joyous and fun. It is also one that calls people to commitment of Jesus. Time spent with the Bentons is an experience, because they have an experience to share. The public is invited.

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — First-round play will be completed today in the National Junior College basketball tournament when Chipola-Marianna of Florida clashes with Alexander City, Ala., and New York City Community College of Brooklyn meets Arizona Western.

When the smoke cleared in the Sports Arena here Tuesday night, San Jacinto of Pasadena, Tex., the nation's top-ranked junior college basketball team with a 32-5 record, lay stunned by a 75-73 defeat at the hands of unranked Moberly, Mo., 30-7.

The Ravens, whose furious late rally saw them outscore Moberly 17-2, do not appear again in the double elimination tournament until Thursday night. They then meet Normandale Community College of Bloomington, Minn., 23-4, which was manhandled in the sixth and last game of first round action Tuesday night, 79-63, by Vincennes, Ind., 29-4.

Other first-round games Tuesday found defending national champion Mercer County of Trenton, N.J., 29-2, smashing Niagara County of Sanborn, N.Y., 23-9, by a score of 80-58; Grand View of Des Moines, Iowa, 26-3, was a 100-87 victor over Copiah-Lincoln of Wesson, Miss., 26-3; Northeastern Colorado of Sterling, 22-10, recorded a 73-66 victory over Hill of Hillsboro, Tex., 26-11, and Northeastern Oklahoma A&M, 30-2, defeated Dodge City, Kan., 20-13, by 78-70.

Today's schedule (CDT):
1 p.m.—Chipola of Marianna, 25-4, vs. Alexander City, 19-8.

American League East preview

O's pitching worries Weaver

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — With spring training more than half over, Manager Earl Weaver is beginning to fret about the pitching of the Baltimore Orioles.

"I'm definitely concerned," Weaver said after his staff allowed 85 hits in the first eight exhibition games. "The pitching is the worst I've seen since I've been here."

The Orioles, seeking to win their fifth Eastern Division title in the American League in six years, apparently were well stocked with five veteran starters headed by Jim Palmer, the league's Cy Young Award winner.

But Dave McNally, bothered with arm trouble last season as he dipped to 17-17, had a 12.38 earned run average in the early going. Newcomer Ross Grimsley, obtained from Cincinnati in a trade, was at 10.80 and Mike Cuellar, who will be 37 in May, showed a 4.50 ERA.

Cuellar usually has trouble early in the season, and Weaver originally proposed using him as a spot starter until warmer weather arrived.

But Doyle Alexander forced Weaver to junk those plans. The 23-year old hurler became a holdout following a 12-8 season, and didn't report until last week when General Manager Frank Cashen invoked the reserve clause in Alexander's contract.

Another nagging problem for Weaver has been the lack of long ball power from first baseman Boog Powell, catcher Earl Williams and rookie outfielder Jim Fuller.

Rookies outfielders Al Bumbry and Rich Coggins, platoon against right-handed pitchers after veterans Don Baylor and Merv Rettenmund got off to slow starts, sparked a conversion to speed. Bumbry, named the American League's Rookie of the Year, hit .337 and stole 23 bases. Coggins hit .319 and swiped 17.

Both will be given a shot at starting berths this season. If they make it, either Paul Blair or Baylor would have to be benched.

If Powell fails to bounce back from last year, when he had just 11 homers and 54 RBI while being bothered with a sore shoulder, Baylor could be shifted to first base.

Traditionally, championship teams have been strong "up the middle," and the Orioles prove the point.

In addition to center fielder Blair, Mark Belanger won his third Gold Glove award as the league's best shortstop and Bobby Grich won his first after setting an all-time major league fielding record at second base by committing only five errors.

Joining with Belanger to form an almost impregnable left side is third baseman

Brooks Robinson, who won his 14th straight Gold Glove at age 36 and hit .271 after reaching the All-Star break at only .228.

Williams will again be backed in the catching department by Andy Etchebarren, who reported late after threatening retirement, and either Ellie Hendricks or Sergio Robles.

Softball meeting scheduled Monday

The Sedalia Recreation Department will hold a meeting of all men's slow-pitch softball teams and players Monday night at Convention Hall in Liberty Park.

The meeting will cover sanctioning of teams requirements for the American Softball Association and nights of play.

It was also pointed out that Monday will be the deadline for entering teams in the league for the coming season.

The meeting will get underway at 7:30 p.m. in the north room on the second floor of Convention Hall.

All interested individuals and team representatives are urged to attend.

Bennett, 3 others repeat on MSSA all-state squad

All-State Teams

Glyndon "Buggar" Bennett, who scored 2,022 points during his career at LaMonte High School, was a unanimous choice on the 1973-74 Class-A All-State Basketball Team, announced Wednesday by the Missouri Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association.

Bennett, only 5-8, was a four-year starter for the Vikings and was named on the team for the second time in as many years.

Bennett achieved all-Kaysinger Conference honors his sophomore, junior and senior years and was an all-district selection by the MSSA in 1972-73, and again this past season.

Bennett was one of seven players named to the all-state list from the central district of the association. Also named in Class-A were Liburn Gregory of Clopton High School (Clarksville), and standout Glasgow junior Lawrence Butler, who's just a junior.

Also named from the central district were Brad Gregory (Montgomery County) and Terry Bogener (Palmyra) in Class-AA, along with Ken Baxter (Columbia Rock Bridge) and Fulton's Gilbert Berry in Class-AAA.

Bennett is in an elite group of four players who repeated on the club for the second year in a row. Also repeating were Tom Shultz, Springfield Glendale in Class-AAAA, Clay Johnson of Kansas City Manual in Class-AAA and Tom Maxwell, Webb City, Class-AAA.

Bennett was the conference's leading scorer as a junior and a senior. When he was a sophomore, he finished seventh in league scoring battle.

Area players named to the honorable mention list were: (Class-AAA) Henry Mason, Marshall; Jim Remole, Moberly; Jeff Weaver, Lebanon. (Class-AA) Doug Anderson, Versailles; Fred Norman, Tipton; Brent Cook, California. (Class-AA) Rusty Templemire, Smithton; Rick Bridges, MSD-Fulton; Larry Sullivan, Tuscumbia; Joe Tanner, Crocker and Leroy Bernskoetter, Blair Oaks of Wardsville.

Grems coach leaves

Beer accepts KC Lillis post

Tom Beer, who guided the Sacred Heart Gremlins to a brilliant 84-29 record over the past four seasons, has accepted the head basketball coaching post at Kansas City Lillis High School.

Beer, 25, who played junior college basketball at Jefferson College (Hillsboro, Mo.) and later at Southwest Baptist College in Bolivar, said in making the announcement, "It's been a great association here ... I would not have left it if I hadn't found a position in Kansas City or back in my home state of Illinois."

Beer was a standout high school player at Mater Dei High School in Breese, Ill.

Sacred Heart was his first coaching post, taking over for Mike Brasnahan at the outset of the 1970-71 season. The Gremlins won their first Kaysinger Conference championship in 1971-72; Sacred Heart repeated as the league champ the following year.

The Gremlins made it all the way to the Class-S quarterfinals of the Missouri State High School Activities Association's Basketball Tournament a year ago, before losing to Mound City.

"I am stepping into a good position," Beer continued. "Lillis had a fine team this season and the players are young ... a lot of them will be back next season."

No replacement has been named for Beer.

MSHSAA expands girls interscholastic athletics

(Democrat-Capital Service)

COLUMBIA — The Missouri State High School Activities Association announced Wednesday that the Board of Control is taking steps to expand the girls interscholastic athletic program by sponsoring additional district events, starting with the 1974-75 school year.

The board also said that a state track meet for girls will be held next year. District track meets have been held for the past two years.

Sports that will be held on the district level next season include golf, swimming, tennis and volleyball.

Tentative plans for district softball tournaments for girls indicate that play will begin in the fall of 1975. Consideration on the softball issue was delayed because of a proposed amendment to change the starting practice date for girls softball to Aug. 15.

Cold weather will greet tennis teams

With temperatures predicted in the 40's Thursday, the Smith-Cotton boys and girls tennis teams will have a cold greeting from the weather man in Clinton when they open their respective seasons.

The meet for the boys is the first of three straight road matches before opening the 1974 home season with Warrensburg April 9.

Other scheduled road engagements for the Tigers are Shawnee Mission, Kan., South on March 30, and Warrensburg on April 2.

Concordia visits the Smith-Cotton girls team April 2.

Recreation department adds kits to contest

Another division has been added to the Sedalia Recreation Department's First-annual Kite Contest, March 30.

Roscoe Righter, city recreation director, said Tuesday that kite kits will be allowed in the contest. In the initial announcement of the department's contest, only home-made kites were allowed.

There are two divisions (first-third grades and fourth-sixth grades). Awards will be made in each division for best design and construction for non-flying models, best design and construction for flying models (home-made and kits) the highest and longest-flying kite.

Registration for the contest, which will be held in Centennial Park March 30, has been extended until March 27 at 5 p.m. Grade school children may get entry forms from the recreation department at Convention Hall in Liberty Park. More information may be obtained by calling 826-7357.

Purdue, Jacksonville move into semifinals

NEW YORK (AP) — "We like to go to these types of tournaments and to be among the top-ranked," said Purdue's Coach Fred Schaus. "It helps people to know we're still alive."

Hawaii got a reminder Tuesday night that Purdue was still very much alive and kicking as the Boilermakers coasted to an easy 85-72 victory and advanced to the semifinals of the National Invitation Tournament.

The Boilermakers, who in the opening round knocked off top-seeded and seventh-ranked North Carolina, will play Saturday against Jacksonville, which won a run-and-shoot battle with Maryland-Eastern Shore 85-83 on two free throws by George Scholz with 25 seconds remaining.

The Boilermaker effort in Madison Square Garden was in contrast to a 76-67 loss to the Rainbows earlier this season in Hawaii.

The Boilermakers rattled off 10 straight points to start the game and had another flurry of 12 straight later in the first half. By halftime, they led by 13 and had a 15-point bulge early in the second half, before Hawaii began to battle back behind Tom Henderson, who finished with a career-high 33 points.

Purdue, now 20-9, did lose Jerry Nichols, who was taken to the hospital for x-rays on his left knee after he fell hard in the second half. Frank Kendrick led the Boilermaker scoring attack with 22 points.

Jacksonville found itself in a running battle with Maryland-Eastern Shore hitting 50 per cent and the Dolphins nearly 49 in the first half which ended with the Dolphins ahead 51-50.

"Our defense left a great deal to be desired," concluded Jacksonville Coach Bob Gottlieb.

Butch Taylor was in foul trouble much of the second half and fouled out midway through the period after scoring 20 points and grabbing 14 rebounds.

Maryland - Eastern Shore, paced by Bill Gordon, who finished with 24 and Talvin Skinner, who had 20, came back to briefly take the lead and then Joe Pace tied the game 83-83 before Scholz sank his two free throws.

NIT quarter-final action continues Thursday night with Memphis State meeting Utah and Connecticut facing Boston College. Semifinals are Saturday afternoon with the championship and consolation contests Sunday.

Cards may be turned in to Dale Weisner at the KuKu Burger Bar, 1400 South Limit.

Persons needing cards may also pick them up at that location.

The league also needs more managers for the coming season. Interested persons may contact Weisner at 827-0997 or Roy Bryson, 826-6729.

Former Cy Young winner Jim Perry (left) was united with his younger brother Gaylor for the first time in his professional baseball career Tuesday, when Detroit traded him to Cleveland as part of a five-player deal. The Tigers sent pitcher Ed Farmer to New York, while the Indians shipped outfielder Walt Williams and pitcher Rich Sawyer to the Yanks; New York dealt catcher Jerry Moses to the Tigers.

Morgan St. captures first in college poll

BALTIMORE (AP) — Coach Nat Frazier of Morgan State will beat the bushes a little later this year in search of basketball talent, but he figures the delay will prove profitable.

Now when he goes recruiting, Frazier has a couple of new selling points to offer prospects. The Bears last week won the National Collegiate Athletic Association's College Division tournament, and Tuesday they were voted the nation's No. 1 small college team in the final Associated Press poll.

Frazier was told of the balloting in New York, where he went to watch intrastate rival Maryland-Eastern Shore play Jacksonville in the quarter-finals of the National Invitation Tournament Tuesday night.

"Now if they can win the NIT, it would really be something," Frazier said in a telephone interview from the hotel room of John Bates, coach of Maryland-Eastern Shore. "It's too bad that Lefty lost."

He referred to Lefty Driesell, coach of the University of Maryland's fourth-ranked major college team, which dropped a 103-100 overtime decision to No. 1 North Carolina State in the Atlantic Coast Conference title game and failed to reach the NCAA playoffs.

Morgan State, led by 7-foot Marvin "The Human Eraser" Webster, posted a 28-5 record this season. The Bears dropped two 15-point decisions to UMES, one in the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference championship game.

In the final AP poll, Morgan received 23 first-place votes and finished with 636 points to easily outdistance runnerup West Georgia, the NAIA champion with a 29-4 record, which had eight first-place votes and 496 points.

Kentucky State, 28-5, won four of its five games last week and retained third place while Alcorn State — formerly Alcorn A&M — with a 29-6 log, jumped to fourth.

If the Kansas City Royals pitching comes through, and if the team hasn't traded away too much power, and if a couple of positions are filled, the Royals could well overhaul the Oakland A's and claim Kansas City's first division pennant in the history of the American League.

Then again, if a frog had wings he wouldn't bump his . . . oh well, you've probably heard that one.

For the first time in Royals' history, the club has the strong pitching potential with returning right-hander Steve Busby (16-15). The Sporting News American League Rookie Pitcher of the Year, and 20-game southpaw Paul Splittorff, who was the first hurler in Kansas City history to win 20 games.

In addition, the Royals traded for two established right-handers during the off-season in Marty Pattin and Nelson Briles.

Pattin, obtained from the Red Sox, won half of his 30 decisions last year, while Briles posted his third-straight winning season with the Pirates with a 14-13 mark.

But Briles has been bothered by an injured knee and talk earlier this week was that Manager Jack McKeon might have to put him on the disabled list.

Add to this list Mark Littell, who led the American Association with 16 wins at Omaha last year, and Kansas City may well better its runner-up standing of 1973, when the team won 88 and lost 74.

Al Fitzmorris (8-3) could either start or relieve, as could Bruce Dal Canton and Wayne Simpson.

In the bullpen, Kansas City bolstered the staff with the addition of ageless Lindy McDaniel to go along with Doug Bird (who led the team with 20 saves last year), Gene Garber and Joe Hoerner.

The Royals are just as strong defensively this year as they were in '73 with John Mayberry, Cookie Rojas, Fred Patek and more than likely Paul Schaal around the infield.

Amos Otis is a fixture in center-field, but the left and right-field positions are right up for grabs.

An off-season trade that brought Vada Pinson to Kansas City could well light a fire underneath Hal McRae in the battle for the right-field spot. The loser of that confrontation will likely move into another dog fight for the starting left-field post along with Jim Wohlford and Rick Reichardt.

Fran Healy blossomed into a major league catcher last year and virtually has that spot locked up.

But when the Royals traded away Lou Piniella to the Yankees to get McDaniel, and gave up Ed Kirkpatrick to the Bucs for Briles, they lost two fine hitters. Piniella was the team's all-time leading hitter, while Kirkpatrick is second on the all-time Royals' home run list.

Pinson, McRae, Wohlford and Reichardt will be counted on to pick up the offensive slack.

All-in-all, the outlook is very bright for the Royals in 1974. So bright in fact that Las Vegas bookies recently installed Kansas City at 4-1 odds to win the American League West.

Toronto offers Dolphins trio $3 million package

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The Toronto franchise of the fledgling World Football League wants three Miami Dolphins stars for a package deal of $3 million. And two of the Dolphins, running backs Larry Csonka and Jim Kiick, say they are willing to listen.

The other member of the threesome, receiver Paul Warfield, was not available for comment.

The financial representative for the three, Ed Keating of Cleveland, was quoted by the Fort Lauderdale News Tuesday as saying, "The money is overwhelming. They should take it."

"If the money is right, I'll go," said Kiick, who has been unhappy playing behind fleet Mercury Morris.

Csonka was as blunt as Kiick in his assessment of the Toronto offer.

"I am deadly serious about going up there and discussing the possibilities of a contract. If the money is right, I will seriously consider it," he told the News from his home in Plantation, Fla.

Trickey pleads innocent

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Oral Roberts University basketball coach Ken Trickey entered a plea of innocent Tuesday to a charge of driving while intoxicated.

The case was set for trial June 6.

Trickey, who had submitted his resignation earlier to be effective at the end of the season, was arrested last week in Tulsa by a highway patrolman.

He suspended himself as coach but was re-instated by the Rev. Oral Roberts, president of the university, to coach the team in the finals of the NCAA Midwest Regional tournament's final game, won by Kansas, 93-90.

West's king of clubs held the first trick as expected. It was up to him to lead once more and after considerable thought he led a second club. This play gave South a slight problem, but he solved it quickly by ruffing and leading out dummy's queen of spades. East took his king, but all the defense could score after that was one diamond trick. "Nicely played," said West. Then he continued, "I guess it helps to have friendly opponents." "What did I do wrong?" asked East. "Nothing at all," replied West. "I was the friendly opponent." Do you see where West went wrong?

If West had reviewed the bidding carefully he would have seen the East almost surely held the king of spades. After all East had made one weak bid and needed one high card for it. Then West would have led his queen of diamonds at trick two. A low diamond lead would give South a chance to let it ride around to his jack, but the queen of diamonds would force South to rise with dummy's king. Later on East would get in with the king of trumps and be able to lead a diamond and give West two diamond tricks.

National Zoo officials are hoping the balmy spring weather will make love bloom between Ling-Ling (top) and Hsing-Hsing (bottom), the rare pandas which were gifts to the U.S. from the People's Republic of China two years ago. Although no panda has ever been bred in captivity outside China, an official at the Washington zoo said, "We are very hopeful this time." (UPI)

People in the news

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Soviet dissident Pavel Litvinov plans to visit the United States, according to a Jewish relief official.

A spokesman for the United Hias Service — a Jewish organization that assists immigrants to the United States — said in New York Tuesday that Litvinov was expected to arrive in the United States April 8 following visits to Rome and Amsterdam.

U.S. consulate officials said

Litvinov would get a visa and that formalities were being cut to a minimum.

A grandson of Maxim Litvinov, former Soviet foreign minister and ambassador to Washington, the 33-year-old chemical engineer was the second prominent member of the dissident community in the Soviet Union to leave Russia since Alexander Solzhenitsyn was ousted.

Litvinov, his wife and two children arrived here on Monday from Moscow.

Potter makes 'memory' from cremated remains

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Armand Henault says he immortalizes friends and acquaintances by molding their ashes into flower pots and sculptures.

"It's better to be looking out on the world as a pot than buried under the wet, cold ground with six feet of dirt piled on top of you," says the 69-year-old Henault.

Henault says some women call his hobby absolutely disgusting, but he claims it's more sophisticated than a funeral, which he calls barbaric.

"I do it for people who want themselves immortalized," he says. "A pot keeps on being, doesn't take up space, and it's practical. One hundred years from now it will be even more of a treasure."

Henault, a retired textile businessman, says he takes cremated remains, mixes the white bone ash with clay, and creates something fitting to the dead person's memory.

Henault says he started his unusual business last year and has molded 80 pots from human ashes.

He says that although he doesn't advertise his product, friends tell friends and he's got a backlog of orders.

Costs for such a piece of pottery range upward from $25 for a small urn, he said.

Henault said the idea developed over a hot toddy with another potter in Henault's home town of Quechee, Vt., where he lives six months of the year.

"We made a pact that whoever died first would use the other's ashes to make a pot," he says.

He said the pact became the subject of town gossip and a widow appeared at his studio one day asking that her husband's ashes be transformed into an urn for the mantle piece.

"Since then, I've been deluged," he says. "I made a spittoon for a woman who said her husband spent a lot of time in the bar. It's a beautiful shape."

"One of my favorites is a sculpture that hangs in an aquarium and little fish swim in and out. Another is a hanging lantern, and relatives light the candle at night."

Arguments on Senate powers is postponed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court will hear oral arguments Monday morning in the suit to delineate the lieutenant governor's powers in the state Senate. The arguments had been scheduled for Friday.

In a suit filed by the attorney general on behalf of Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps, the high court upheld Phelps' constitutional right to preside last Nov. 30. But the court decided to rehear the case to consider just what the lieutenant governor's duties regarding the Senate are under the Constitution.

Following the court's ruling, a dispute arose over whether Phelps had the power to rule on points of order and assign bills to Senate committees.

The original suit was filed on June 15, the last day of the 1973 legislative session after Phelps was escorted out of the Senate chamber because he would not give up the chair to Senate President Pro Tem William J. Cason, D-Clinton.

Chrysler price hike announced on 1974 autos

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. has announced a retail price increase averaging $28 on its 1974 model cars.

The increase, effective Monday, is the first since price controls were lifted last December. It is the second increase by Chrysler since it introduced its 1974 cars last fall.

The increase averages seven-tenths of a per cent per unit and ranges from $15 for the Dodge Dart and Plymouth Valiant to $67 for the Plymouth Fury, Dodge Monaco, Chrysler and Imperial, Chrysler said.

In the announcement Tuesday, Chrysler said the price increase is necessary to offset "rapidly increasing costs of both labor and materials."

General Motors and American Motors would not comment Tuesday on Chrysler's latest increases.

This is a section of a rare copy of a 16th century street map of Mexico City, apparently drawn by native Indians under the direction of Europeans. Color lithographic reproductions of the original at Uppsala, Sweden, have lain in storage at the University of California for about 70 years. Historians say the map is an excellent record of Mexico City and environs about 1550. (UPI)

Missouri woman drowning victim

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — An autopsy performed on the body of a Missouri woman who fell off a charter fishing boat Saturday showed the victim died from drowning. District Medical Examiner Millard White said Tuesday.

Edna Colbert, 67, of Montgomery City, Mo., was leaning on a chain link section of a guard rail at the stern of the 55-foot pleasure boat when she fell into the water in the Gulf of Mexico, according to the vessel's skipper, J. F. Hembree.

"As soon as we heard someone was overboard, my first mate, Jim Carson, threw her a ring buoy and jumped into the water after her," Hembree said.

"I can't understand it. The ring buoy could hold up three people, but all of a sudden she turned face down in the water," the captain added.

The boat radioed the Coast Guard for a helicopter, which hoisted her aboard and flew her to Sarasota Memorial Hospital, where she died six hours later. Mrs. Colbert and her husband Murray were visiting her brother-in-law Emil Colbert of Sarasota, who accompanied them on the fishing excursion.

Colbert said he was standing next to his sister-in-law when she fell.

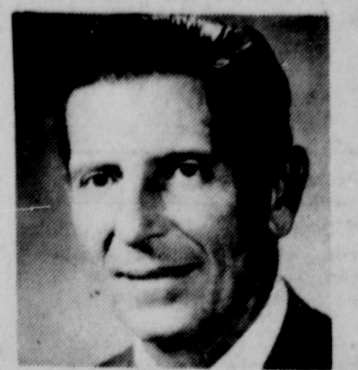

"It was a windy day, the boat pitched and the chain broke," he said. "They had to pull up anchor and go around and pick them up," Colbert said, referring to Mrs. Colbert and the first mate.

"It was windy and it took about 15 minutes to get her back on the boat," he added. "We didn't understand what happened. We didn't know she was unconscious until she was on the boat."

The family said arrangements had not been completed for shipping the body back to Missouri.

Nebraska firm low bidder on Meramec dam

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Midwest Construction Co., of Nebraska City, Neb. was the apparent low bidder Tuesday on construction contracts for a proposed Meramec dam and park project near Sullivan, Mo., according to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Midwest's bid of $1,428,408 was the lowest of six opened for the project, which includes the construction of an administration building, visitors center and access road at the site. The bid was $56,363 less than the government had estimated.

The $87-million dollar project, which would create a 12,000-acre lake on the Meramec River, is being opposed by the Sierra Club, an environmental group.

The club has gone to court to halt construction contending it would constitute irreparable environmental damage.

Pettis County V.F.W. Auxiliary post No. 2591 will hold their regular meeting at the post home, 121½ South Ohio at 8 p.m. Wednesday, March 20th. All members please attend.
